Old Man Was Awed by a Revolver

BOSTON, June 16.—With a revolver pointed at his head for several minutes, one futile attempt made to shoot him by a daring house thief, and then forced to hold up his hands while the burglar that he had apprehended in his home made a successful escape, Otis Merriam, over 70 years old, clerk of the board of overseers of the poor of Chelsea, had the most exciting experience of his life yesterday afternoon.

In his apartments on the second floor of the Hotel Wollaston, a four-story wooden structure, 265 Washington avenue, Chelsea, shortly after the noon hour yesterday, he discovered a burglar.

The latter had heard Mr. Merriam entering his suite, and was endeavoring to make his escape with the booty he had taken when he was apprehended.

Mr. Merriam grabbed the intruder by the hands and the latter, quickly freeing himself, turned on Mr. Merriam. The burglar pulled a revolver from his pocket, aimed it at Mr. Merriam's head, pulled the trigger, but it

SHOT AT FATHER

During Dispute Over Money Matters

LYNN, June 16.—Disagreement over financial matters is said by the police to have caused Camillo Forte, 32 years old, to attempt to kill his father, Peter Forte, in their store at 23 Pleasant street last night. Four shots were fired from the revolver which the son suddenly drew from his pocket during a heated argument with his parent.

One bullet passed close to the elder man and lodged in the wall very near where he was standing, facing his son. Another went through one of the store windows. The police were unable to find where the other two bullets lodged.

The son, who was grabbed by several Italians, was turned over to Patrolmen Rowe and Teel and while excitement was at a high pitch in the Italian district he was hustled into a patrol wagon and sent to the Sutton-

"BAKER" DORANDO

HAS NOW GOT PLENTY OF DOUGH

Dorando, the Italian Marathon runner, has cleaned up over twenty-five thousand Yankee dollars in the last six or seven months. He is going to sail for home.

According to other distance runners the Italian has now pursses aggregating $27,000.

Less than a year ago this same Dorando was an insignificant and unknown Italian baker, having his own troubles in keeping cheap clothes on his back and getting enough to keep him alive. He got the running bug and some one slaked him to the Olympics in London. His spectacular collapse just before he crossed the line in the Marathon race which Johnny Hayes won is ancient history, but that collapse was worth more to him than if he had won the race, as he was the chief figure in that memorable contest.

A few weeks in the music halls of London put him on his feet financially and then along came the American promoters, who secured a contract with the Italian for six months' races in the United States.

How Dorando made good over here and really improved in his speed is well known. He has run in short and long distances, and while he did not win all of them, he was sufficiently attractive to come out handsomely in his end of the purse. He was well advertised. He has been a thrifty fellow and has something to show for his work. Jack Johnson and some other pugilists could get a little profitable hint from this $27,000 which Dorando has laid by.

He knew the game would not last always, and he made hay while the sun shone. He says that he expects to run very few Marathons in the future, as the effort is too wearing and he wants to live some time yet. He will confine himself to fifteen miles and under. He is not going to quit the racing game at all. In fact, he is coming to the United States next fall, and, according to the Marathon runners here, he will make this country his home.

MARATHON RACE

AT CANOBIE LAKE ON JUNE 26TH

Of interest to all lovers of running races and sports in general is the announcement from the offices of the New Hampshire electric railways that the new track now in course of construction in the baseball grounds at Canobie lake park will be formally opened on Saturday afternoon, June 26. For the past week Engineer Hood of the company's staff and a gang of men have been employed in laying out the course, and the track will undoubtedly be completed during the present week. When completed it will be one of the finest ever constructed for a similar purpose in New England. For the opening day the management is arranging one of the most attractive cards that has been offered in New England in many years. The principal feature will be a nine mile Marathon race, which is open to athletes anywhere in New England. It was the original intention of the management to make the principal feature a Merrimack Valley Marathon, limiting the contest to residents of the principal cities of the Merrimack valley, but owing to the unusual interest in the event and the desire of many of the largest athletic clubs in Boston and other cities to send representatives, the management has decided to allow any member of the A. A. U. in New England to participate, or any amateur of acknowledged standing. The event has the sanction of the A. A. U. and will be run under the rules of that organization. Application blanks may be obtained by addressing E. B. Bishop, New Hampshire Electric Railways, Haverhill, Mass., or the sporting editor of this paper.

LOUIS PRANG

WELL KNOWN BOSTON MAN IS DEAD

BOSTON, June 16.—A dispatch from Los Angeles, Cal., yesterday, announced that Louis Prang of Boston, an art publisher and lithographer of worldwide reputation, died in that city of pneumonia Monday night. He was the husband of Mary Dana Pickle Prang, formerly of Syracuse, N. Y., the well known art educator and author.

Louis Prang was born in Breslau, Germany, in 1824. For taking part in the revolutionary movement of 1848 he was forced to leave Germany, arriving in Boston in 1850. His productions of color printings and reproductions of famous paintings made him known throughout the world. He also devised text books on art, drawing books, and writing books which are used in the schools of the United States, Canada and other countries.

Mr. Prang devoted more than forty years to the study of how to create a standard of colors, a problem that had puzzled science for centuries.

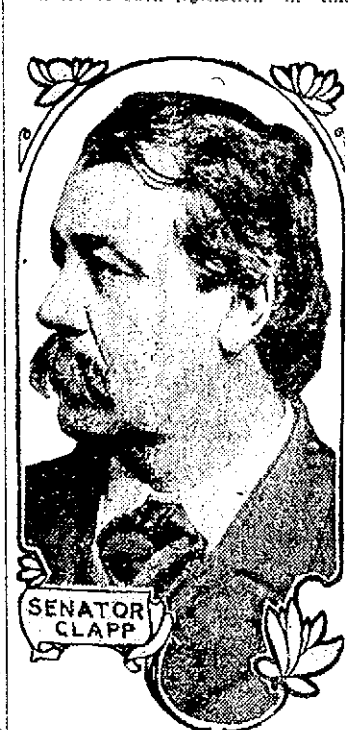

For many years he was head of L. Prang & Co. of Boston and Springfield. He was also president of the Prang Educational Co. of New York. He was a member of numerous New York and Boston clubs and institutions.

SENATOR CLAPP

Leader of Fight on Free Sugar

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Senator Clapp of Minnesota led the fight in the senate against admitting tobacco and sugar from the Philippines. His contention being that the sugar and tobacco trusts alone would be the beneficiaries of such legislation in this country.

He was told by Senator Aldrich that the measure was especially favored by the president and replied that he had been diligently at work throughout the special session to carry out Mr. Taft's pledges to the people. He said he was not going to let little headway be made, but that Minnesota senator has voted with the several other republican senators from the middle west for a downward revision of the tariff.

COST $250,000

TO DEVELOP $15,000 HORSE-POWER OF ELECTRICAL ENERGY

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 16.—An exhaustive investigation just completed by a commission of government engineers acting with local officers of the government engineer office, city officials of St. Paul and Minneapolis and prominent business men has demonstrated that 15,000 horsepower of electrical energy can be developed at a lower cost than the two new navigation locks lower of the Mississippi just above St. Paul, by the expenditure of an additional $250,000. The government makes the unusual proposition that it will permit the use of power at the lock, provided the two cities or other interests will bear the additional cost. That the power will be used is already settled. Whether it will be used by a private power company, or used jointly by the state of Minnesota and the two adjacent cities is a question which will be determined by a joint commission composed of three men named by Gov. Johnson and three by each of the two mayors.

The government has completed one lock and dam, and partially completed the second, or lower of the two. To develop the power the second dam must be raised 15 feet, utilizing present foundations and the work already completed. This will provide a 30 foot dam, raising a large head of water and developing enormous power. The state is already interested and wishes a portion of the power for use at the state university nearby. The work already at school, which is one of the largest in the United States and the state fair grounds. The government requires 1000 horsepower, and the two cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis have need of the balance.

The government's proposition, while it does not establish a precedent, is unusual and the proposed improvement will be the first of its kind in the northwestern United States. The investigations prove that the power can be developed at an exceptionally low cost. The most important problems now to be faced by the division are the expenses and the division of power to be developed as between the government, state and the cities. The partnership in power, while novel, has been proven feasible. The power plant when built will be only a short distance from Fort Snelling, an immense military post, and convenient loan to the state institutions and to St. Paul and Minneapolis. The government was represented in the conferences by Major C. S. Riche, in charge of upper Mississippi river improvement work; Major Shunk, the engineer who supervised the construction of the locks, and Major Bromwell of Milwaukee, who had the assistance of Major S. W. Miller, T. S. A., and J. D. Lu Shanz, John Wade and G. W. Freeman, government engineers from the St. Paul office. Major Lawler of St. Paul and Hayes of Minneapolis, together with officers of the city governments, council members and business men, participated in the investigations. The report of the joint commission will be made to the board of engineers after which the project will be referred to Washington. Legislation will be required before St. Paul and Minneapolis will be able to participate in the cost.

NEW YORK, June 16.—With President Samuel Gompers in the chair but unlikely to be able to attend all the sessions because of his approaching departure for Europe, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor at the opening of its quarterly meeting here yesterday adopted a resolution favoring the establishment of an international federation of labor.

The resolution declared that such a federation, which was not impairing the autonomy of the trade union movement in each country, would have for its purpose the promotion and advancement of the rights, interests and justice of wage earners.

GIVEN A SENTENCE TO STATE PRISON

SALEM, June 16.—Salvatore Signorilli, a Lawrence Italian, indicted for the murder of Maria Magri and the attempted murder of her daughter Anna, whom he wished to marry, after being allowed to plead guilty to the charge of manslaughter in the superior court today, was last night sentenced by Judge Fox to serve not less than 10 nor more than 15 years in state prison.

Mrs. Magri and her daughter lived in Lawrence and when Signorilli proposed marriage the mother interposed objections and told Signorilli to wait until he had some property. Signorilli attacked the woman, killing the mother and seriously injuring the daughter early last fall.

THREE DEAD

AS RESULT OF EXPLOSION IN POWER PLANT

DENVER, Colo., June 16.—Three persons are known to be dead, one probably fatally injured, nine severely injured and three missing, as the result of the explosion last night of a 200-ton boiler in the power plant of the Denver Gas & Electric Co.

So terrific was the explosion that the heavy boiler was thrown high in the air. It crashed through the roof of the plant and completely wrecked the generator and the roof and walls. The electric lights were cut off for more than two hours and the city was in darkness. The property damage is estimated at $250,000.

TO CELEBRATE THE FOURTH

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The sailors and officers of the battleships of the Atlantic fleet will be given ample time fittingly to celebrate Fourth of July at ports on the New England coast. From July 2nd to 6th they will be given shore leave.

At Boston the four ships of the first division of the fleet—the Connecticut, Vermont, Kansas and Louisiana—will give their men liberty.

The four vessels of the second division will scatter along the coast, the Minnesota being sent to Marblehead, Mass.; the New Hampshire to Portsmouth, N. H.; the Mississippi to Eastport, Me., and the Idaho to Rockport, Mass.

Two of the third division ships, the Georgia and New Jersey, will go to Provincetown, Me., and the Nebraska and Rhode Island of that division will be sent to some port to be selected by the division commander.

PRINCETON, N. President Wilson spoke first of the feeling of comradeship which he felt toward President Lowell and declared forcibly that the accomplishment of President Lowell would help to widen the counsel of college presidents and incidentally draw Princeton and Harvard nearer together.

FISHERMEN'S MEMORIAL DAY

GLOUCESTER, June 16.—To the ocean which had claimed as tribute 62 Gloucester fishermen during the past year, there were strewn yesterday his quantities of flowers in memory of the men who had gone to the sea in ships. It was the annual fishermen's memorial day here. Among the 40 children who sang, there were several whose fathers, brothers or kinsmen had been lost.

The services which were held on Pavilion beach were most impressive. Officiating was Rev. G. S. Anderson, whose little flock is year by year depleted from the same general cause.

The number of men mourned for today is larger than has been the case for several years past. Formerly the average number of deaths during a year was about 100, but with the advent of larger vessels and various improvements, the number has dwindled and lately has been as low as 25.

TRAINING SCHOOL

Beautiful Graduation Exercises
Held Last Evening

Associate Hall Crowded With
Friends of Pupils and Pupil-
Teachers — Address by Prof.
Charles Zueblin

The annual graduation of the Training school took place in Associate hall, last evening with a large attendance. On the platform were the pupils of the school, the pupil teachers, the faculty, the members of the school board and the speaker of the evening, Mr. Charles Zueblin, principal of the school who made a graceful speech of welcome.

As the speaker of the evening, Prof. Charles Zueblin, had to take an early train he was presented, first, on the program by Miss Gertrude Edmund, principal of the school who made a graceful speech of welcome.

At the close of Prof. Zueblin's address Miss Edmund introduced Miss French who is employed by the Florence Children's society to assist school physicians by investigating conditions in the homes of the children. Miss French spoke in a most interesting manner.

Miss Edmund addressed the grad-

service and the wealth of opportunity in a teacher's life.

The Graduates

The names of the teachers graduated are as follows: Mary Helena Collins, Sadie Agatha Connors, Grace Eliza Common, Elizabeth Anna Conway, Kathleen Discoli, Frances Louise Donovan, Laura Frances Greene, Mary Julia Moynehan, Katherine Philomena O'Brien, Edith Tasker Sanborn, Lena Mildred Small, Louise Chaire Thomas and Rena Jenks Thomas.

The names of the graduates of the grammar school are as follows: Henry K. Gerlach, Mary L. Hey, Sherrill C. Blair, Henry C. Rich, Richard O. Sykes, Mabel A. Birtwell, Harold J. Wilde, Hamozash de Manduam, Fred Marshall, Daniel Joseph McGee, Charles Ortel, Daisy Lowney, Joseph Henry Wood and Marion E. Kimball.

Prof. Zueblin's Address

Prof. Zueblin's subject was "Industrial Education," and he spoke in part as follows:

"Industrial education means to most people the training of the hands of factory workers. I should like to use it tonight in a much broader sense, in which I may take the liberty of implying that you all need industrial education. It is needed by the employer, by the employed and by the public.

"We are a little inclined to overlook the employer. The average employer of labor does not know much about working people. He may know something about the service that he buys, but he usually does not know much about working people. If he has risen from the ranks himself he is less likely to know, than if he has not, for we become surrounded by new social conditions and very rapidly get into an entirely new atmosphere, and forget the scenes of our youth.

"But if the employer needs to be educated in regard to what should be said about the workingman? The average workingman does not understand any of the commercial processes by which his goods are marketed. The mere making of a good product does not get it sold. The industrial education of the workingman must be merely of his hand and eye, but must enable him to understand the great, mysterious processes of business.

"What shall we say about the public? The great, impersonal, conscience-punishing thing that is looking, generally, for one of two things,—either things that cost less than they are worth, or things that cost more? The great power behind all the employers of labor is the purchasing public. Its employees include those that we commonly call employers, as well as the employees.

John Mitchell said that the average American workman expects to be a workingman. That is a truism, but newspaper writers got hydrophobia over it. Yet it is unfair to persuade the average boy to devote himself to the idea of becoming president. The sooner we become interested in the belief that they are to remain workingmen, and educate them for that and reconcile them to that, the better.

This training is to be not only for efficiency, but also for adaptability. The function which the teacher has is to prepare the American boy and girl for adaptability to meet the new situation. Things do not stay as they are, even in our old-fashioned New England towns.

The big business organizations can not get enough of the men who know how to manage men. We must give to every individual who has this to him, a development of that adaptability, and I personally believe it is inherent in every individual.

Referring to our textile school, which is preparing young men for work in our great local industries, the professor said he met on the train one night, the young man going back to Lawrence, from this school. "Some of them," he said, "came here surprised, in order to take advantage of this opportunity for education. Is it any wonder that the principal waxes enthusiastic? But I asked him what he was going to do for the boys who do not care enough for education to go school, and he said he did not think he could do anything for them.

"Now, I want to say to these graduates that they will have to do something for those boys, too. That will be their hardest task. To take the orphans' box and give it the best possible use of them. Genius will take care of itself; but how about the boy who does not want to make those sacrifices? We must somehow or other, throw wider open the doors of school for him, and give him the power of adaptability.

"To adaptability, we want to train the workers in efficiency. Here is America, standing triumphantly before the world! Surely we have shown our efficiency in the organization of business, in getting markets; but do you know who it is that does most of this country? It is the foreigner. The American workman, when he succeeds, becomes an overman, an employer, a capitalist. Men are everywhere complaining of the quality of the workmanship of our boys and girls that come out of our schools. We will have to go to school ourselves, as a nation, to Germany and even to Japan.

"If we are to have adaptability and efficiency, we must give to the workers an interest in their work.

"What can the school do? It can give the boys and girls of America an elementary education. Do you appreciate that not one-half of the children of five America ever go through the eighth grade? They are drafted into work before they are prepared.

"What next can you give to the average child in school? At least a general education. We ought to have some appreciation of the finer things of life, no matter what our future occupation is going to be. If we are going to be scavengers and street cleaners, all the more reason for knowing something about art to begin with.

"But, you ask, how can we? Surely the industrial education will have to crowd out some of the other things! But we want to go more into the rudiments of culture, and we can do it if our education is scientific. If we give the children a lot of literary and scientific instruction in the morning and let them work with their hands all the afternoon, we can combine a better literary education than we give them now, with an industrial education.

"Take English literature alone. We cannot possibly compass it. We should therefore select for each child that thing which will do him most good, and that he will remember most.

"The old-fashioned pedagogue will tell you that there is discipline in these things. Yet, if you can be taught something that you will remember and at the same time get discipline, that is the thing you ought to be taught.

"The boy in our industrial school of the future who shows early proficiency in metals; let us give him history from the standpoint of metals. Raw minerals in the earth; the uses in which they are put. Think of the history of metals, and you think of the history of civilization; but you can think of the whole line of kings and queens, and get no light on civilization.

"Then there is the boy who likes to work in wood. There is the primeval forest; the uses of lumber, all the evolution of architecture. Even the dominant religion of our country comes from a carpenter.

"Teach literature and science in the same way.

"Suppose you teach a boy history from the standpoint of metals and he turns out a minister! Well, it never will hurt him to remember some of the content of his disciplinary studies, a thing which he does not do now! I spent a series of painful years forgetting five years of Hebrew, when I might have been studying economics.

On the subject of local education, he said that the textile school of Trenton, N. J., has developed the work in clay to the point where the brick layers' union requires one year of instruction in that school, as a condition of admission to the Union.

The consumer, he said, needs industrial education in order to appreciate the products of labor. "Every time you buy a yard of cloth or a pound of butter or sugar, do not forget that you employ all of the labor that goes into it. You are responsible for all the conditions. We have clothing that is manufactured in sweat shops, and we get diseases. Yes; but do not forget that the people in sweat shops have diseases too; and that is as bad as for us to have them. Some day we are going to have conscience in these things."

Speaking further along the line of local education, he said: "Quite recently, the people of your city discovered that they were responsible for one

FIRE EQUIPMENT

COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS DID NOT TAKE ACTION

The question of appropriating $20,000 for new fire equipment and fixtures went to the committee on appropriations last night. The expenses recommended by the committee on fire department was as follows:

Auto protective $5500; hose wagon, Central fire station $500; aerial ladder, Central fire house, $5200; equipment for Central fire house $3550; new fire engine for Pawtucketville, $5250.

Councilman James Flannagan of the committee advocated that $4700 be expended for an aerial truck, and that $3300 be expended for fittings for the Central fire house; also that $2000 be used in repairing the Pawtucketville fire engine, instead of buying a new engine.

Councilman Kilpatrick favored the expenditure of $20,000 for fire apparatus. No action was taken, and the committee adjourned to next Monday night.

The despatch says that the tobacco growers regard that part of the Payne bill which provides for the free entry into this country from the Philippine Islands of a certain amount of cigar leaf tobacco and a certain number of cigars as the greatest menace that has ever threatened the tobacco industry of the country.

How to Stop Baldness

Woods Hutchinson, M. D., widely known as a writer of authority, says in the Cosmopolitan Magazine for February, 1909: "The main hope of stopping the advance of baldness lies in the direction of improving the general health and vigor, while at the same time keeping the scalp and the hair in a clean, antiseptic, well-ventilated condition. Avoid using too strong soaps, strong alkalis, such as ammonia and soda, and too hot water, as all of these take out too much of the natural lubricant, or oil, of the hair, and leave it dry and harsh." Birt's Head Wash is recommended as a perfectly safe preparation for cleansing the hair and scalp. It is a mild, antiseptic preparation, made of Refined Soap, Cochon Cocoanut Oil, Glycerin, White of Eggs and Salicylic

Acid. This is a formula that comes well within Dr. Hutchinson's recommendation, as it contains no free alkali or ammonia, and it puts the scalp and hair in a vigorous, healthy condition. After using Birt's Head Wash, your hair will possess a lustre and sheen that no other remedy can bestow, while your scalp will be soft, white and clean. Remember always that cleanliness comes first of all in stopping falling hair, curing dandruff and itching scalp, and that for all these troubles Birt's Head Wash is the best thing you can buy, for you know exactly what it is made of. There are so many fakes and frauds for the hair on the market that you ought to be glad to get something that you can depend upon as being safe to use. Price 50c a jar.

THE BIG WHITE WAY

We have already endorsed Mayor Brown's idea of the big white way so far as Middlesex street is concerned. That street is altogether too dark when the stores are closed. It will be vastly improved by being lit up by a number of the large arc or other lights, such as are seen in front of some of our leading stores. If the cost is not exorbitant, it will bring satisfactory returns in the more attractive appearance of the streets by night and the banishment of all that is either literally or figuratively "shady."

OUR BARBAROUS FOURTH

We are nearing the annual orgy of noise and fireworks by which we celebrate the Fourth of July. It is right that we should celebrate Independence Day, but to go to such extremes that on the following day the dead will number 100 and the wounded 3000, is the height of absurdity.

It is a fact that since 1899 the average deaths on the Fourth, due to accidents in fireworks and other features of the celebration, have averaged fifty each Fourth, while the American Medical Journal last year reported the deaths from accidents at 163.

Nothing can stop this foolishness but strict regulations by towns and cities and rigid enforcement of the law.

The present style of celebration is little short of barbarous and yet it is only regarded as the uncorrupted merriment of the younger generation. But the noise is not by any means confined to the young. It is not uncommon to find that men old enough to have sense, have blown their fingers off in the careless use of explosives.

If the older people do not attempt to drop their insane antics on the Fourth, they cannot expect the young to lead the way.

If all the lunatics in the asylums of the United States were gathered together and let loose along the streets of Lowell, we venture to say they would not appear to be half as crazy as the people we shall have along our streets, and on the public parks and commons on the night before the Fourth.

There is a society in New York for the suppression of unnecessary noise, and it is doing excellent work in influencing cities and towns to suppress the bedlam that prevails on the Fourth and the evening before.

Of course it would be useless to try to stop people from killing themselves when they insist on pursuing so many methods of accomplishing that end. But they may condescend to concede a little in the matter of making less noise.

The noise is harrowing to the sick, the weary, the weak and the brain-fagged. It is often actually cruel in its effect upon nervous people while trying to invite much needed sleep.

Not only the noise should be eliminated but the cannon crackers, the fireworks, the noise, the use of explosives, toy pistols and shot guns should all be barred except under special license.

Unless the authorities in cities and towns decide to make our Fourth more safely enjoyable, we shall never see much improvement in the lessening of noise or reducing the number of fatalities.

SECRETS OF LONG LIFE

We notice for the sake of comparison the "glad tidings" brought to his people by Dr. Otoman Zar Adusht Ha'nish of Chicago, the apostle of the Sun Worshipers in this country to the effect that nobody need ever grow old or experience sorrow or disease if they live according to the formulas of his cult. He made this declaration in Chicago a few days ago at a meeting of Mazdaznans at which Mother Shaw of Lowell sat at the right of the Master. We presume that Mother Shaw is henceforth immune against all the ills of life, sorrow, sickness and even death. This so-called "master" who is yet a young man, judging from his appearance, tells his followers that he is 64 years old and that he lived in other bodies before reaching this earth.

We are not interested in the tenets held by the Sun Worshipers and would not have referred to them, but for this catchy declaration that their methods of breathing, bathing, eating and dressing render them immune from disease and the usual infirmities that come with advancing age. Professor Fisher of Yale in an article in the World's Work gives some scientific theories on the means of overcoming as far as may be practicable the inroads of disease. He points out the things that make for long life and condenses them into "knowledge, self control and enthusiasm." He advocates plenty of fresh air both for the lungs and the skin, proper bathing, exercise, resting, sleeping, thinking, feeling and willing. The secret of health, he holds, lies in moderation in food united with an even and cheerful disposition that looks upon the sunny side and avoids unnecessary worry over the affairs of every day life. Professor Fisher holds that a man arrives at maturity when 25 years and that he should logically live five times as long or 125 years.

The errors by which people shorten their lives, according to Professor Fisher, are immoderate eating or drinking, noncompliance with the laws of health and hygiene, worry, anger, jealousy, ill temper, fear, excitement, hate, grief or any other depressing emotions of the mind. We cut short our lives and do not live nearly so long as we might by strict adherence to the laws that promote health and happiness.

These statements are based upon the truths of science and not upon fake theories such as are dispensed by the representatives of various cults, bearing high sounding names. Unfortunately it is not always possible for everybody who understands the laws of health to follow them. Those who have money enough to enable them to avoid engaging in any unhealthful occupation or in over-fatiguing labor might prolong their lives by following the rules laid down by Professor Fisher. It is universally admitted that the people who lead an easy, quiet life without any nervous excitement and without indulging in any kind of will naturally live longer. Other things being equal, then, those who live in the midst of excitement and are under continuous nervous strain,

SEEN AND HEARD

THE WORLD AT ITS BEST
Oh, it's good to get up in the morning when the wind blows through blossoming trees.
And a fragrance, delightful and subtle, is wafted along on the breeze.
When the emerald hills in the distance seem nearer than ever before, and the wavelets make music as softly they ripple upon the wide shore.
How fair is the world when the dew-drops begin the wide meadows in May.
And how gladly we praise the Good Giver when roses bespinkle the way.
But the world's at its best, and its dearest, dark stretches are splendid to see.
When the check in the letter is larger than you dared to expect it would be.

"Sir, I wish to marry your daughter," faltered the young man.
"You do?" exclaimed the fond parent. "Well, I have been rather expecting this, and to be thoroughly orthodox, I shall put a few questions to you. Do you drink?"
"No, sir. I abhor liquor."
"You do, eh? Smoke?"
"I never use tobacco in any form."
"Well, I didn't suppose you ate it. Do you frequent the race tracks?"
"I never saw a horse race in my life, sir."
"Um-m-m. Play cards for money?"
"Emphatically no, sir."
"Well, young man, I must say you are heavily handicapped. My daughter is a thorough society girl, and I can't for the life of me see what she is going to do with you. However, it's her funeral, and if she wants to undertake the job—why, God bless you both!"—Washington Post.

Female bandits ought to be able to hold up trains.
The owner of an illicit still is anxious to keep it quiet.
Dying is the only satisfactory thing some people ever do.
The hair bleacher is glad to take silver in exchange for gold.
An actress likes to think she is the darling of the gallery gods.
It sometimes happens that a bald-headed actor has a good part.
When the wife's away the badly trained husband will play—if he can find a few congenial spirits willing to take a hand.—Chicago News.

The fisherman and his story are again with us for a season. The question at issue just now is whether the fish or the stories are the larger and better. One account in which the fish seems to rival the story for honors has recently crossed the ocean from London. A correspondent of a journal published in that city writes that he went fishing not long ago in a small lake outside the corporation limits. After flitting with trout nearly all day he finally succeeded in hooking one—a little fellow. The fish didn't seem to care very much at first and the fisherman confessed that when he discovered what a small one it was he did not care very much either. However, he decided that he would have to take something home to show for his day's work and so he pulled the trout toward his landing net. The fish came in along the surface with its side up, as fish sometimes do when they are dragged rather rapidly or when they are trying to decide what their course of procedure shall be. The fisherman found that his line was a little too long and so he began to reel in, rather carefully, allowing the tip of the rod to drop. The fish "sized up the situation" and took immediate advantage of the favorable conditions. When only about two feet from the landing net, where the water was only two or three inches deep and so clear that every movement of the fish could be seen, it suddenly dashed toward a little patch of grass, seized several of the tough strands in its mouth and prepared to resist capture. It held on valiantly, the fisherman using compelled to exercise considerable muscular power to pull it loose. When it was finally hauled within reach of the landing net, and lifted out of the water, the fisherman discovered that a piece of the grass was still stuck in its mouth.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

The John Hubbard Curtis prize for highest excellence in literary or rhetorical work in the academical department of Yale university has been won by Henry D. Hammond, of Nashville, Tenn., a senior. The Scott prize in French is awarded to Charles R. Bentley of Rochester, N. Y.

The American girl is the greatest influencing element in European life today, says Edgar Saltus in the July Smart Set. The rock-ribbed traditions of a titled aristocracy that has resisted every democratizing assault of modern times are crumbling before the flood of the new ideas introduced by American women who have become the leaders of European houses. Titles are losing their value as far as the men are concerned, and are becoming like feathers and ribbons, mere appendages of feminine adornment. Men were formerly known by their dress; today they are known by their address. When society abroad becomes ideal, concludes Mr. Saltus' clever essay on "The Foreign Princess," no man will be titled, and all the women will be.

Word comes from Warsaw, Russia, that Judah Loeb Peretz, the Yiddish writer and poet, will make a tour of the United States and give a series of readings from his published works in Boston.

The statues of lions on the campus of Princeton college are to give place to a pair of tigers. The incongruity of the lions at a college whose emblem is a tiger has long been recognized, and at last they are to be removed by the students.

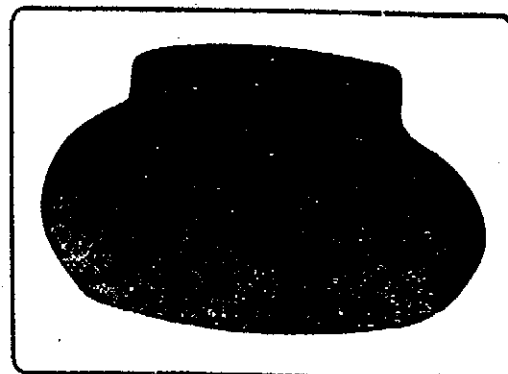

Parsons' picture of Mr. Waldorf Astor has been judged unfavorably by the British Medical Journal for its false anatomy. The Journal finds fault with the strained position of the patient's shoulders, which are held awkwardly high, the scapulae being pulled back so that their vertebral borders are almost touching one another. It is not the peculiarity of the artist or the sitter, for it occurs in many figures and that is a pity, for the habit of posture will be handed down to succeeding generations," it says.

E. H. Scherer and Julia Marlowe have signed contracts by which they will appear together in Shakespearean plays under the superb management of the three acting seasons.

Harrison Gray Fiske has secured dramatic rights of W. J. Locke's "Peepshow" and George Arliss will star in the dramatization, which has been entrusted to Philip Littell, who made a brilliant version of the play to submit to the press. Mr. Locke is improving it while Mr. Fiske "like the play in its present form very much, and I must congratulate Mr. Lit-

THREE DARING DRIVERS IN INDIANA RACE AND MAP OF THE CROWN POINT COURSE

CHICAGO, June 16.—Twelve cars entered in the Crown Point-Lowell race on June 15, and 12 of the most famous and daring drivers in the world will pilot them in the contest. The race starts at Crown Point, Ind., 11 miles from this city, at 8 o'clock a. m. and should finish the 100 miles in 45 to 50 minutes. The race will be guarded by a regiment of militiamen. Drivers like Robertson, Lytle, Strang, Miller and Seymour, all noted in the realm of motor speed, estimate the victor's average speed in Saturday's race at 75 miles an hour. To establish this average the leader will have to travel faster than 65 miles an hour on the straightaways. In some respects the Indiana roads outclass the courses at Savannah, Briarcliff, Long Island and Lowell. Strang, a contestant last summer in the Grand Prix, rates the Crown Point course even faster and easier to negotiate than the celebrated speed race at Dieppe, France. The Cobe race will be preceded on Friday by the Indiana trophy contest, which will bring out 15 cars.

The cars and drivers in the Cobe race are:

JAP STRIKERS

Have Not Received Reply to Appeal

HONOLULU, June 15.—No reply has been received by the Japanese strikers here to the appeal which the arrested editor of Jiji made to Ambassador Takahira at Washington. The appeal claimed that the authorities entered the office of the newspaper without due process of law and thereby violated the treaty rights of the four editors now under arrest. A letter to Takahira, setting forth the steps taken by the "Higher Wage Association" and reciting the acts of the authorities, accompanied the appeal. The appeal to the ambassador, which was sent by the Japanese of San Francisco and Seattle, has been received by the strike leaders promising financial and moral support. All of the messages sent that subscriptions have been started.

The strike leaders declare that the arrests have solidified the sentiment of the strikers and the whole Japanese community.

The Japanese retail merchants' association has reconsidered its resolution favoring a return to work and now favors the prosecution of the strike. It is alleged that many Japanese are buying revolvers with the avowed purpose of resisting what they term illegal seizures.

STOCK MARKET

SHOWED SOME SIGNS OF WEAKNESS TODAY

NEW YORK, June 16.—Weakness marked the opening of the stock market today. There was a continuance of the pressure to sell that marked the trading yesterday afternoon and speculators exhibited much disappointment over the news that the United States Steel shares probably will not be listed on the Paris bourse. U. S. Steel shares opened a full point lower than last night and continued to decline in the first few minutes of the trading. Northern Pacific shares also were weak, opening 1 1/2 lower than last night. Rock Island fell 1 1/2. Great Northern opened 1 1/2 and 1 1/2. All in the early trading.

NEW SCHEDULE

ASSESSING DUTIES ON SILK AND SILK GOODS

WASHINGTON, June 16.—A new schedule assessing duties on silk and silk goods was submitted to the senate yesterday when consideration of the Philippine amendment was temporarily suspended. The substitute for the house provision was offered by Mr. Aldrich for the finance committee. By means of a technical distinction of silk versus haberdashery goods, the place of the compound specific and ad valorem rates to the house measure. Mr. Aldrich, in announcing his intention of explaining the new schedule more fully, when it is taken up, for consideration, declared that it does not change the rates of the Payne bill except to reduce the duties on some of the velvet articles.

The distinguishing mark between velvets and plushes is changed so that those having pile exceeding one-seventh of an inch in height are to be classed as plushes instead of those having pile exceeding one-sixth of one inch in length.

The house provision, which required that articles made of artificial silk or artificial horse hair should be marked under rules to be prescribed by the secretary of the treasury has been stricken out. The house rates on handkerchiefs or mufflers have been retained, but the new schedule eliminates the provision which required that the duties should be assessed on handkerchiefs in accordance with the duties imposed upon goods in the previous schedule. Specific duties are substituted for the ad valorem rates imposed by the house bill on yarns or artificial silk.

After the reading of the amendments to the silk schedule, the senate passed to the consideration of other items of the bill.

Upon motion of Mr. Aldrich the committee amendment reducing the duty on unmanufactured asphaltite of baryte or baryte from 15 to 75 cents per ton was disagreed to. The high house rate being retained.

Paragraph 93 was amended upon motion of Mr. Aldrich so as to place a duty of 30 per cent. ad valorem upon electrodes, brushes, plates and disks when composed wholly or in chief value of carbon.

RULERS TO MEET

Czar of Russia to Meet the Kaiser Tomorrow

ST. PETERSBURG, June 16.—Premier Stolypin, Foreign Minister Lavovskiy, Count Von Pourtal and the German ambassador and the German military and naval attaches left here today on board the Russian imperial yacht Polar Star, to join Emperor Nicholas in Ploppas bay, where the meeting between Emperor Nicholas and Emperor William will occur tomorrow. Emperor William already is on his way to the rendezvous.

Ploppas is a small retired bay on the south coast of Finland, about sixty miles from St. Petersburg. It has been chosen by Emperor Nicholas as his summer yachting headquarters on account of its climate, natural beauties and seclusion. A few Finnish villages being the only inhabitants of the region. The meeting of the two emperors in 1906 occurred in this same vicinity. All the conferences and festivities will be held on board the yacht Standard and Hohenzollern, the former with the Russian emperor and the latter with the German emperor on board.

Stores of Lowell Merchants Association will close TUESDAYS at 12.30, this year, instead of Thursdays, from Tuesday, July 5 to Tuesday, Sept. 14

KAISER'S TROPHY AND COMPOSER OF PRIZE SONG FOR BIG FESTIVAL

NEW YORK, June 16.—A chorus of 6000 voices, accompanied by an orchestra of 150 pieces, is a feature of the great songfest to be held in Madison Square Garden, New York, from June 19 to 22, inclusive. Half a dozen of the world's most famous soloists will be heard. The Kaiser's trophy, which the German emperor gave several years ago to stimulate among German Americans the art of song, will be competed for by the Kreutzer Quartet club of New York, the Concordia Singing society of Wilkesbarre, Pa., which has won it twice; the Junger Maennerchor of Philadelphia, the German Maennerchor of Newark and the Arion society of Baltimore. Mathieu Neumann's prize song, "The Warning of the Rhine," has been selected for the competition. No fewer than 155 singing societies will compete in the various contests.

AN ELKS' CHARM

Presented to William F. Foye by Friends

About 30 of the friends of William F. Foye, the new proprietor of the Park hotel, tendered him a house warming at the hotel last evening and tested his ability to serve food, for they had served them a beautiful repast with turkey and all the delightful fixings as the principal number on the menu. During the repast Buckley's orchestra furnished program of popular music. The pleasant affair was carried out under the direction of Mr. Robert Manning. There were friends present from Boston, Lynn, and Nashua, N. H.

During the evening Mr. Foye was presented with a beautiful Elks' charm.

WESTFORD
The parade committee and the committee on July Fourth celebration held a meeting at the town hall last night to perfect the plans for the celebration. The fire companies of the town have been invited to join in the parade. The Westford A. A. ball team and singing team, the Foresters of Grantville, and all the people of the town are invited to parade. It is open to all the people of the four villages, Grantville, Westford, Forge Village, and Brookside. Anyone wishing to have a float or join in the parade is cordially invited.

TO PAY CREDITORS
WORCESTER, June 16.—It was announced last night that Harry W. Smith of Worcester and Leesburg, Va., well known as a follower of the steel-plate and as a master of jousts, has made arrangements by which creditors of the Worcester Mills, which made an assignment last March, will be paid in full. Mr. Smith was the dominating factor in the corporation.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE FUNDS
BRUNSWICK, Me., June 16.—The income bearing funds of Bowdoin college have increased from $300,000 in 1887 to $2,000,000 this year according to the annual report of President William De Witt Hyde which will be issued today. The number of students has increased in 25 years from 125 to 250.

COTTON FUTURES
NEW YORK, June 16.—Cotton futures were better not take whiskey
The next time you have a sudden chill—you or any of the folks at home—don't bother with whiskey or waste time. The new size is 50c, or 50c, a (larger) bottle. You ought to have it on hand.

FREE TEA PREMIUMS

NO PREMIUMS NO STAMPS

The most expensive habit of the purchasing household is in the acceptance of the so-called free premiums with tea and coffee. This decision met its greatest defeat with the advent of the 5 and 10 cent stores, now in every large city. Buy your tea and coffee of tea and coffee specialists at the cost and discontinue the purchase of 5 and 10 cent articles for 25c and 50c. These are facts. A single trial will convince.

LIFE OF A PIMPLE

Complexions Are Cleared and Pimples Disappear Overnight Without Trouble.

The dispensers of Poslam, a new skin discovery, ask that notice be given that no one is urged to purchase it without first obtaining an experimental package. Those who have tried it will find the 50-cent box, on sale at Falls & Burkinshaw's and Carter & Sherburne's, and all drug stores, is sufficient to cure the worst cases of eczema, where the surface affected is not too large. The itching ceases on first application. It will also cure acne, better blotches, scaly scalp, hives, barbers' and every other form of itch, including itching feet. Being flesh colored and containing no grease, the presence of Poslam on exposed surfaces, such as the face and hands is not perceptible. Water and soap cannot be used in connection with it, as these irritate and prolong skin troubles sometimes ever causing them.

As to the experimental package of Poslam, it can be had free of charge by mail of the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York. It alone is sufficient to clear the complexion overnight, and to rid the face of pimples in twenty-four hours.

SERIOUS CLASH

Between Schooner and a Trawler

NORTH SYDNEY, C. B., June 16.—Word was received here yesterday of a clash between the Gloucester, Mass., fishing schooner Senator Gardner and the French steam trawler on Quaker bank. The captain of the American vessel, according to reports of other captains, fired on the Frenchman with a rifle.

The French trawler's rail was splintered by the shot, but otherwise the damage is believed to have been small. No person was injured so far as is known.

The firing is supposed here to have been the outcome of a long standing antagonism between the steam trawlers and handline fishermen. The French, American and New Foundland fishing schooners claim that the trawlers have done much damage to their gear, besides depleting their catches. While the action reported here yesterday was the first in which weapons were used, it did not stand alone. The same vessels which brought the report of the Senator Gardner's firing, also reported that the captain of a French fishing schooner which had lost nearly all her outfit by another steam trawler, boarded the marauding trawler and brandishing a revolver, in demanding that damages be paid him for the loss sustained. He was forcibly ejected from the steamer's deck.

In command of the Senator Gardner, the schooner reported to have taken the initiative in the action against the trawler, is Captain Vincent Nelson. The report states that Captain Nelson had been awaiting for two days a chance to set his traps, before it was possible to dispose of his gear so that the trawlers might not damage them. But he had no sooner sent his dories out to set the lines than a large French trawler was seen to bear down upon them. The captain, which the Frenchman approached, said that the schooner was carrying away part of the Gardner's fishing gear.

As had been done many times before, Captain Nelson tried to reason the trawler into moving off from his lines, but his protests failed. Then rose to the surface his exasperation borne of continued reports and experience of antagonism by the trawlers, and Captain Nelson ordered brought on deck a rifle. Ammunition was not handy, but with American ingenuity he is said to have used lead slugs made out of musket balls, which had been cut in pieces of the rifle. It is alleged that as the Frenchman was in the act of pursuing the American schooner's trawls, Captain Nelson fired at the steamer.

During this time the dory crews which had been setting the trawls were also out of the water. When Captain Nelson fired his shot he gave no thought to the dories. One of them was thrown on the top of a wave as the shot was fired, and the leaden missile narrowly missed the occupants, Fabien Lawrence of L'Ardoise, Richman county, N. B., had a narrow escape.

Balked in his first shot, the captain said that Captain Nelson again loaded with the same charge, and fired again. The shot this time reeking the rail of the trawler. Except for a slight splintering, however, but little damage was done. The combat, the captain said, was renewed, but the Frenchman was said to have hurried away while the steamer made no attempt to follow.

It is the general opinion here and in St. Pierre that similar encounters are long as the trawlers persist in their present wide sweep on the banks. Schooners have had all their gear carried away, and were forced home with their trips a complete loss.

Is what one writer has termed proprietary medicines.

Good, honest proprietary medicines like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound succeed, and the homes of the masses are blessed by them, while those which are worthless or harmful soon drop out. Thirty years of success during female ills is the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

BROWN UNIVERSITY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 16.—One hundred and seventy-five graduates of Brown university in cap and gown marched slowly down College hill in the morning sunshine to the old Baptist meeting house today and there before a gathering of distinguished visitors, alumni and undergraduates, received their diplomas and their degrees.

It was the 113th annual commencement at the university and there were over a thousand in the line which paraded the graduates down the hill. The exercises opened shortly after ten o'clock.

Quadrangles were given by Joseph C. Connolly, of Fairhaven, Iowa, laureate of this city, and the Chumney Hall chorale of Providence, Mass.

ACCIDENTS

John Fuderski, aged 5 years, residing at 24 William street fell off a table in the rear of his residence this morning and sustained his wrist. The injured boy was attended by T. J. Sullivan, M. D., and is resting comfortably at home.

WOMAN INJURED

The ambulance was called at about 10 o'clock last night to 153 Colburn street and took from that house Mrs. Ann Farrell, who had fallen down a flight of stairs and received a bad laceration of the forehead. She was removed to the Lowell hospital.

Patient: "But—er—fancy eating fifty or sixty apples a day!"

HER USUAL PLAN.

Mr. Askitt—Willie, what is your sister going to do on her birthday?
Willie (aged nine)—Take a year off, I guess.

TALK VERSUS GIRLS.

"TALK never seems cheap when the one talking to you is a little dear."

ON THE LINKS.

Apopleptic Colonel (after six mild ones in the bunker, in a passion)—And I get a stroke here—what?
Medical Partner—Well, there is every symptom of it.

THAT PIE.

"What is this, dear?"
"It's pie I made out of Mrs. Weston's cookery book."
"Then this business, says I presume, is the binding."

Perfect Restraint.

"JOHNNY, you should practice self-restraint. I saw you strike a little boy yesterday."
"Dat was no time ter practice restraint. Ye ought ter see me when I git mad at a big boy."

Quite a Natural Thing.

WIFEY—You will have your fling.
Hubby—Quite naturally. I used to be a baseball pitcher.

Fixing the Motive.

WHY is she so anxious to go to cooking school?
"Maybeshe wants to get even with somebody."

HARD ON JONAH.

Mrs. Jonah: "The next time you stay out three days and three nights don't tell me a fish story like that."

He Can't Grow Younger.

LONGFACE—Seems to me you've grown considerably older since I saw you a few years ago.
CROOK—Well, what would you expect? Do you think I'm a wa-hat?

One Thing Certain.

REGGY—I've got a cold or something in my head, doncher know?
PEGGY—Well, if there's anything there it must be a cold.

True to Her Town.

BLINKER—I see Mrs. Boston proud of her family tree?
Clinker—No; of her family bean pole.

PUZZLED.

"Oh, nurse, what shall I do? I dropped my penny in the bathtub, and it's gone down its windpipe!"

"Now, young man; I may look small to you, but remember I have knocked out bigger men, and without much trouble."

She Didn't Care.

EDITH—I don't care what sort of a husband I get.
Mamma—You don't care? Why, Edith! How can you say such a thing?
Edith—No; I just don't care, so long as he's rich and handsome and kind to me—so there!

Wasn't Her Fortune.

WHY don't you marry a millionaire, Maud?
"Haven't the nerve to try, Edith."
"Different with me."
"Why?"
"I haven't the face."

Authority.

MISS ANTEEK says this is the most sanitary of all the ages.
"She ought to know," said the man who roomed across the hall.
"She's compared a good many of them."

AN UNFINISHED COURSE.

"Does your son graduate this month?"
"Oh, no! He has another year on the track team."

AT THE DANCE.

Jack—Aren't you going to dance with Fred?
Fred—With that? Well, hardly.
Jack—It's your duty, old chap. This is a charity affair, you know.

Has the Ladies Guessing.

DO you know a good conundrum?
"Yes."
"What is it?"
"Why is a bachelor?"

Fickle Fortune.

DID Fortune smile upon you?
"Well, I should say not. She gave me the horse laugh."

Carrying It to Extremes.

HE is certainly very polite.
"Polite? I should say so. Why that fellow will laugh at an English joke."

WITH THE INSECTS.

Mr. Ant: "Here is your rent bill, Mr. —. Why, that isn't the fellow I rented this branch to last autumn!"

GOLF IN CENTRAL AFRICA.

"Golf has become all the rage here!"

No Help Wanted.

YOU seem to have a hard cold.
"Sh—don't mention it."
"What's the matter?"
"I don't want my friends to notice it."

Cause and Effect.

CLARK—Hello, old man! You are looking much better than when I last saw you.
Halsted—Yes, my doctor has neglected me shamefully of late.

Eventually.

WHO gets the bulk of Pemberton's estate?
"The lawyers."

A Sly Hit.

HENRY JAMES, the American novelist, lives at Rye, one of the cinque ports, but recently he left Rye for a time and took a house in the country near the estate of a millionaire jam manufacturer, retired. This man, having married an earl's daughter, was ashamed of the trade whereby he had piled up his fortune.

The jam manufacturer one day wrote Mr. James an impudent letter, avowing that it was outrageous the way the James servants were trespassing on his grounds. Mr. James wrote back: "Dear Sir—I am very sorry to hear that my servants have been poaching on your preserves."
P. S.—You'll excuse my mentioning your preserves, won't you?

IN A BIRD STORE.

Prospective Purchaser (to bird fancier): "I should like these parrots awfully, but I'm afraid if I sent them up miles from home they'd never get back—what?"
Bird Fancier: "That's all right, you'd get them back with you, as they'd be with you all the time they can get."

AT NOTRE DAME

Commencement Exercises Were Held This Forenoon

Very pretty and very impressive graduation exercises were held in the chapel of the Notre Dame academy this forenoon. The chapel was prettily decorated and the young women upon whom graduation honors were conferred made a very pretty picture. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends of the graduates and a goodly sprinkling of former graduates.

The exercises opened with a solemn high mass at 10 a. m. Rev. Timothy J. Callahan was the celebrant. The deacons were Reverend Eugene A. Barry and Reverend Joseph C. Curran. Reverend Michael J. Scanlon was minister of ceremonies and the sermon was by Reverend Eugene A. Barry.

The conferring of diplomas was by the Right Reverend Mgr. George J. Patterson, V. G., assisted by Rev. William G. Brien, P. R.

The certificate of admission to Trinity college was awarded Miss Alice Smith and graduation honors were conferred on Misses Carolyn Birch, New York; Elsie Bullard, Everett; Mary Collier, Cambridge; Alice Donohoe, Lowell; Marietta Dwyer, Lowell; Mary Fehure, New York; Catherine O'Hearn, Lowell; Mary O'Sullivan, Lowell; Mary Thomas, Lawrence; Helen Reidy, Edinboro; and Alice Sullivan, Lowell.

The program was as follows:

Professional, Gregorian, Lachner, Introit—"Spiritus Domini," Gregorian, School and Choir

"Kyrie," "Gloria," Missa de Beata Maria Virgine, Gregorian, Gregorian, Gradual—"Justus ut palma florebit," Chanters

MORSE RESIGNS AT HOLY CROSS

Secretary Gives Up Commencement Exercises Tomorrow

W. A. Morse, general secretary of the Lowell Y. M. C. A., has resigned from the position of secretary of the Young Men's Christian association. The reason for his resignation is given below.

The following letters and facts concerning Mr. Morse's resignation were received at The Sun office this afternoon:

Lowell, Mass., June 15, 1909.

Lowell, Mass.

Gentlemen—Enclosed please find a few facts concerning Mr. Morse who has resigned his position as secretary of the Young Men's Christian association. The reason for his resignation is given below.

Mr. Morse has not been feeling well of late, and added to this, the severe illness of his father who needs his care and attention, has made him feel that it was his duty to be with him. Mr. Morse will leave the city with the regrets of all who know him. As a secretary of the Y. M. C. A., he has rendered most efficient service, bringing it to the present state of great activity and making the association a great power for good with the young men and boys of our city.

Enclosed please find a few facts concerning his work here, also a copy of the letter to him from the board of directors.

Very respectfully,
S. H. Thompson, Jr.,
Board of Directors.

Mr. Morse came to the Lowell Y. M. C. A. from the Nashua association, Feb. 1, 1908. The membership has grown from 150 to over 800, and is now so large that the building is overcrowded and inadequate to the demands of the work.

Among the important developments during Mr. Morse's leadership was the building of a new building, which was completed last fall. The building is now being occupied by the association and has given entertainment to many, and brought many features of national prominence to Lowell.

Mr. Morse leaves the association in a prosperous condition.

Lowell, Mass., June 15, 1909.

Mr. W. A. Morse.

Dear Mr. Morse—Your letter of resignation was received by our board of directors with great regret. For the past year you have rendered the association a valuable service and we are deeply indebted to you for the work you have done. We are sorry to see you go, but we know that your interest in the association is such that you will be more pleased than you are when the building is completed and the work established in quarters adequate to meet the growing demands of the young men and boys of Lowell upon the association.

We also desire to express our appreciation for the services rendered by you in many ways by Mrs. Morse.

With an earnest hope that in whatever field or labor you enter in the future your efforts may meet with great success, we remain,
Yours sincerely,
Board of Directors,
Lowell Young Men's Christian Assn.

The 62nd annual commencement exercises of the College of the Holy Cross, Worcester, Mass., will take place tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock, on Pitkin Field. The guests of honor will be His Excellency Governor Eben S. Draper, Archbishop Quigley of Chicago, Ill., and Sir Edward P. Morris, of St. John, N. E., the premier of Newfoundland.

The commencement exercises of this institution, the oldest Catholic college in New England, will be of special interest to Lowell this year, by reason of the fact that a Lowell boy will be graduated and for the further reason that a number of Lowell boys have taken a prominent part during the year, in the college societies and have become stars in some of the college athletic games, so much so that Lowell people have every reason to be proud of their boys in attendance on St. John's.

The Lowell boy, who has successfully completed the four year university course, and upon whom will be conferred the degree "cum laude" of A. B., is Thomas A. Ginty, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Ginty, the former the well known owner of this city, and his son and many of his friends together with a number of people from St. Peter's and St. Anthony's parishes will be present at the exercises.

The following Lowell boys, students at Holy Cross college, have returned home for their summer vacation: Leo Molloy, Leo King, Cornelius O'Neil, Edward Hassett, Roderick Quirbach, Joseph D. Pyne, Patrick J. Reynolds and Edward Fay.

Lowell boys have always made a good showing at Holy Cross college, and this year is no exception, for two of the boys have made themselves the star of the college. Joseph D. Pyne, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Pyne of Central street, was the manager of the varsity football team of the season of 1908, and as this team is one of the best the college has ever seen, Mr. Pyne consequently gets all the credit coming his way. Patrick J. Reynolds, son of Mr. Michael and Mrs. Reynolds of Chapel street, has also made the "cum laude" in the basketball field, for he was the captain and star player of the team, and all in his first year, at the Worcester college.

SUBURBAN DAY

LOWELL MERCHANTS PLAN TO ENCOURAGE TRADE

The suburban trade development committee of the Lowell Merchants' association, appointed for the purpose of encouraging the residents of surrounding cities and towns to do their shopping in Lowell, met this morning at the rooms of the board of trade in the Central building. All of the members of the committee, Messrs. Harry Dunlap, J. L. Chaffin, E. C. Garrett, Messrs. Marks and John A. McKenna, were present.

The committee has been endeavoring to arrange a plan to develop the suburban trade and has at hand quite a fund furnished by the merchants in newspapers and banks. Every plan which has been submitted by the committee to the railroad companies has been opposed by the latter on the ground that they would interfere with the interstate commerce laws.

The plan developed upon this morning has been submitted to two of the railroad companies and has been found to be practical. Secretary McKenna has been instructed by the committee to have published 20,000 circulars explaining the object of suburban day, these circulars to be distributed in the surrounding cities and towns. The committee also voted to have ten bill boards erected in the towns adjacent to Lowell.

TRIAL BEGUN

Suit of Mayor Brown Against John H. Harrington of The Sun

The case of Geo. H. Brown, mayor, against John H. Harrington, proprietor of The Lowell Sun, for alleged libel, in the sum of $50,000, went to trial before Judge Pierce in the superior court shortly before noon today. Dennis J. Murphy appeared for the plaintiff and James J. Kerwin and Frederick B. Greenhalge for the defendant.

During a recess just prior to the calling of the case counsel on both sides held a consultation with the court in the latter's reception room.

Fourteen men were drawn for the jury, the plaintiff challenging Wm. H. River, a carpenter of North Reading. Judge Pierce informed the jury that the case was a suit brought against a newspaper by the mayor of Lowell and stated that if any member had read any of the articles upon which the suit is based and believed that their opinions would be influenced by the fact they were excused from service. Robert J. Shepherd, of Lowell stood up and was excused.

The jury selected was as follows: Amasa S. Hamilton, Lowell, retired, foreman; William Blanchard, Tyngsboro, farmer; Edward C. Butterfield, Sudbury, farmer; Patrick H. Connolly, Reading, spinner; James H. Connolly, Reading, express agent; Howard M. Goodnow, Sudbury, farmer; Charles D. Kimball, Reading, machinist; Arthur M. Patten, Lowell, conductor; Fred K. Sinclair, Tyngsboro, farmer; Fred A. Snow, Chelmsford, bookkeeper; Archie W. Swallow, Dunstable, farmer; Edward D. Tuck, Chelmsford, farmer.

When the jury had been empaneled counsel for the plaintiff opened the case by reading the lengthy declaration of plaintiff and defendant's answer. The declaration contains five counts, the first embodying a lengthy article published in The Sun on December 7, 1908. The other three relate to certain paragraphs in the article contained in count one.

In opening for the plaintiff, Mr. Murphy explained that at the time of the publication of the article in question the plaintiff was the nominee for mayor of Lowell in the recent political parties in a heated and bitter campaign, and on the night before election The Sun published an article aimed to defeat Mr. Brown. He said the plaintiff would show that he never accepted any bribe from liquor dealers; that Ship Moffat never said he was opposed to Brown because he had his hand out and he would show that Brown was born in Waterville, Me. Most of the article, he said, was maliciously written to bring about Mr. Brown's defeat the following day.

Mayor Brown Testifies

Mayor Brown and Mr. Wyman, keeper of the city reading room, were sworn for the plaintiff's side, and Mayor Brown took the witness stand.

In response to the questions of counsel, Mr. Brown gave in detail his life in Lowell with particular reference to his Spanish war experience, giving a rather detailed account of his travels in the army.

Mr. Kerwin interrupted to inquire if this testimony was competent. Judge Pierce said that it could be given to show what kind of a man the plaintiff is.

Upon his return to Lowell in 1901, witness said he was appointed to the police force, having taken the examination before he went to the war. In September 1903, he was appointed to the regular force. He served as a probationary officer for nearly a year, May 1, 1903, he was appointed a member of the liquor squad and remained a liquor squad member until May 1, 1904. He was then made inspector of minor licenses and after that went out on a round.

"While on the squad I generally acted with the others," said the witness, "but sometimes I acted alone. The superintendent handed the warrants to the head of the liquor squads. I can remember whether the superintendent ever gave the warrants to any one else except on Saturday nights when we split up. On no occasion was a search warrant ever given to me. I made reports of my observations and gave them to the superintendent. I remained a police officer until the day after the last city election. On the afternoon of December 7, 1908, I purchased a copy of The Sun in front of The Sun building."

The paper was produced and marked as an exhibit.

Mr. Murphy then read from the article, it is common talk that he chased the year with $12,000, etc. "Did you have $12,000?"

"No, sir."

"How much did you have?"

"About $1200 or $1500."

"Where did you keep it?"

"Father had it. I don't know whether he put it in the bank or not."

"Did you have any money in the bank?"

"No, sir."

"Did you receive any money from anyone at that time?"

"No, sir."

"Did Mr. Moffat ever tell you you couldn't be promoted because you had your hand out?"

"No, sir."

"Did you ever hear it said you had to get a bribe to get promoted?"

"No, sir."

"Did you ever hear of such reports until you read it in The Sun?"

"No, sir."

"Where were you born?"

"In Waterville, Me., May 22, 1872."

"How old were you when you came to Lowell?"

"About five years."

"Did you ever receive any gift or bribe during the liquor war?"

"No, sir."

"Did you ever hear of such reports until you read it in The Sun?"

"No, sir."

At this point Mr. Murphy asked a question to which Mr. Kerwin objected, whereupon Judge Pierce suggested to counsel for the plaintiff that he put in the article and read his case.

The plaintiff then rested.

Witness Replied that he couldn't remember

"Do you know Margaret Fitzgerald?"

"I don't think so."

Mrs. Fitzgerald stood up and witness identified her.

"Did you visit her house in no license year?"

"I did with others."

"Did you ever alone?"

"I did not. I wouldn't go into her house alone."

"Did you ever go there to serve a summons?"

"Yes."

"Did you ask her for $25?"

"I did not. That's a lie."

"Did you ever throw anything at her window to attract her attention?"

"I did not."

"Didn't she let down a spool from her window to you?"

"She did not."

"Didn't you go up alone and help her hide liquor before the others came?"

"I wouldn't go there alone."

"Didn't she give you about $200 during that year?"

"No." These questions are all barefaced lies."

"Did you ever meet James Fulton Corbett at Mrs. Fitzgerald's?"

"You know him?"

"I do not."

"Wasn't you inspector of minor licenses?"

"I was."

"And Mr. Corbett is a pawnbroker?"

"I don't know him."

"Did you ever tell Thomas Lennon that other liquor dealers had given you money?"

"No."

"Did you ever tell James Connors of Pleasant street how much money you collected?"

"I did not."

"Did you tell James B. Casey and James Sullivan what you had collected for the Home campaign?"

"I did not."

"Did you ever meet them at Spillane's house?"

"Yes, we talked about whether certain people were with Casey or not."

Boston Elevated Case

The case of Gay vs. Boston Elevated went to the jury this forenoon and the verdict was put on the stand by the plaintiff's counsel. The case was settled which was next on the list was settled out of court. The Gay case brought out medical testimony of an interesting nature as the plaintiff claimed that the injury received in the accident brought on an attack of appendicitis. Dr. Brooks, an eminent authority on appendicitis, was put on the stand by the defense and was cross-examined at length by Lawyer Mullen, counsel for the plaintiff. Among his questions Mr. Mullen asked:

"In your opinion doctor, couldn't a man live long without an appendix as well as with one?"

"What's that got to do with this case, Your Honor?" asked Lawyer Saltonstall for the defense.

"It hasn't anything, but it's interesting," said the court, smilingly.

"Perhaps the doctor will give us a talk on anatomy," said Mr. Saltonstall.

"That might do in the next case, a suit for libel," returned the court.

BROWN UNIVERSITY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 15.—One hundred and seventy-five graduates of Brown university in cap and gown marched slowly down College hill in the morning sunshine to the old Baptist meeting house today and there before a gathering of distinguished visitors, alumni and undergraduates, received their diplomas and their degrees. It was the 111st annual commencement at the university and there were over a thousand in the line which followed the graduates down the hill. The exercises opened shortly after ten o'clock. Orations were given by James G. Connolly of Pawtucket, R. I., Littlefield of this city and Chauncey Earl Wheeler of Plainville, Mass.

One of the most impressive services ever witnessed at a Brown commencement took place this noon when President W. H. P. Fauce of Brown, university, standing at the edge of his pulpit in the old First Baptist meeting house conferred on Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, of Boston, the degree of letters. The university has rarely conferred degrees on women and it has been only in recent years that it has been done at all.

When the president announced the name—Mrs. Julia Ward Howe—very one in the meeting house arose solemnly as a unit. Chancellor Chase and Prof. Wilfrid Munroe assisted Mrs. Howe slowly from the front pew to the foot of the red covered pulpit steps. After receiving the diploma and the white insignia of the degree she trembled slightly and then half raised the diploma in salute, bowing slightly. At that moment the band stationed in the gallery struck of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and with a muffled light up her face Mrs. Howe, who was escorted back to her seat.

At the conclusion of the exercises the band played the "Battle Hymn."

"I feel much honored by this degree. It is doubly precious to me because my grandfather received his degree of A. B. there some years ago. I cannot tell when, but it was long before I was born. Then too, my husband, Dr. Howe, was a graduate. It was a most beautiful occasion and I was indeed much moved when the band played the 'Battle Hymn.'"

Charles E. Hughes, Jr., the son of the governor of New York, was to have been one of the orators of the occasion. President Fauce announced, however, that he had been accused because of illness, but he came to the meeting house in company with his mother, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe. He did not arrive till late in the morning. On her arrival she was escorted to the seat reserved for her.

After the orations had been delivered, came the conferring of the degrees in the course and the commencement of prizes to the graduates.

CITY SOLICITOR

Gives an Interesting Opinion on Canal Bridges

The following opinion by City Solicitor Duncan in reply to request by Alderman J. F. Connors, is of considerable interest, historically and otherwise.

Office of City Solicitor,
Lowell, Mass., June 15, 1909.

Alderman J. F. Connors,
Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir—I have your request for an opinion as follows: "What position does the Locks & Canals and the city of Lowell occupy in regard to the question of bridges over canals within the city's limits?"

The 1792 act was passed by the legislature incorporating the "Proprietors of the Locks and Canals on Merrimack River" and authorizing the construction of a system of locks and canals for transportation purposes and for making it possible for boats, rafts, etc., by the building of canals around the various falls in the river, to pass, without interruption, from the Northern boundary line of the state to the sea.

Section 5 of said act is the one most pertinent to an answer to your question, and is as follows: "And be it further enacted, that the authority aforesaid, in the prosecution of said undertaking, make a canal across any public highway, or any of any highways shall hereafter be laid out across any such canal, it shall be the duty of the said proprietors to make and maintain in good repair a sufficient bridge or bridges over such canal."

Under the authority of this act and amendments thereto the Pawtucket canal was built, but its purposes were largely defeated by the construction of the Pawtucket canal, opening up direct communication between Lowell and Boston in 1793.

In 1821 certain gentlemen interested in cotton manufacturing, looking around for a proper location, were attracted by the water power in the Merrimack river at Pawtucket Falls, and purchased a controlling interest in the stock of the proprietors of Locks and Canals company. They also purchased a large tract of land for manufacturing purposes, and in 1832 the Merrimack Manufacturing company was incorporated. The stock of the Locks and Canals company was then transferred to the directors of the Merrimack Manufacturing company as trustees for the latter corporation.

Upon gaining control of the Pawtucket canal the Merrimack company at once began to enlarge the canal and the canal was made sixty feet wide and eight feet deep. They also constructed for their own purposes a new canal, called the Merrimack canal, extending from the Pawtucket canal near the Lowell at the Merrimack company mills.

In 1825, the proprietors of Locks and Canals on Merrimack river were authorized by the legislature to purchase, take and hold all or any part of the real estate, with its appurtenances, held by the Merrimack Manufacturing company. Under this act the Merrimack company except its mill yard were transferred to the proprietors of the Locks and Canals. The Merrimack company was the owner, however, of the stock and franchises of the Canal company.

Later, several other manufacturing plants were established including the Hamilton, Appleton, Suffolk, Tremont, Lawrence, Lowell, Scott, Middlesex, Massachusetts, Prescott, and the Lowell Machine shop. These, together with the Merrimack company were authorized by act of the legislature passed in 1845 to purchase and hold the capital stock of the Locks & Canals company, in such amounts as each of them should see fit. This act provided that nothing it contained should in any way affect the existing duties and obligations of the proprietors of the Locks and Canals on Merrimack river.

The Pawtucket canal built under the original charter of the Locks and Canals company, starts at a point on the river just above the Vesper boat house, crosses Pawtucket, Broadway, School and Thordike streets; thence by the mills of the Appleton and Hamilton companies across Central street to the Concord river.

The Merrimack canal extends from the Pawtucket at the Lowell Machine shop under Market and Merrimack streets to the Merrimack river.

The Western canal was built in 1831 by the proprietors through land conveyed to them by the Merrimack company in 1825. It starts at the Pawtucket canal near the Lowell Machine shop crosses Dutton, Worthen, Broadway, Jefferson, Market, Merrimack, Moody and Hall streets, and empties into the Merrimack river near the Lawrence Manufacturing company. It is fed by the Northern canal.

The Eastern canal built in 1837 has two bridges, one on Merrimack street near the Concord river, and the other on Bridge street.

The Northern canal was built in 1845 and passes under School, Pawtucket, Cabot and Suffolk streets.

Now by said section 5 of the Acts of 1792 and which the Locks and Canals Co. was originally organized, the company is bound to build and maintain bridges over canals constructed by it under the provisions of said act, and it makes no difference that streets where bridges are required were laid out by act of the Merrimack Manufacturing company. The Merrimack Manufacturing company through its own land. They therefore, being built or held under the above act, are subject to none of its provisions and are subject only to the general laws relating to highways.

The court in the case of City of Lowell vs. Proprietors of Locks and Canals, 4 Mass. 4, says, that whenever the public exigencies demand the laying out of a highway, the expense incident to the making thereof, and of the necessary bridges connected therewith, devolve upon the city or town in which the same is located and not upon the individual owning the land over which such road passes, unless there be some special legislation applicable to the particular case.

And referring to section 5 of said Act of 1792, the court further says that the provisions of this section impose with the defendants a liability coextensive with the canals and works to be made and constructed under said incorporating act and that if the bridge in question was upon a highway laid out across Pawtucket canal, constructed by the proprietors under that act clearly the expense of making and maintaining it would devolve upon them.

The canal in controversy in this case however, was the Merrimack canal and having been built for manufacturing purposes under the provisions of the act incorporating the Merrimack Mfg. Co., and through land owned by the latter company, it was held that the act of 1792 did not apply to it, and that if the city wanted a bridge constructed at the point where the canal now crosses Market street it must bear the expense itself.

The rule holds good, I assume, in the case of every canal in Lowell except the Pawtucket canal. The general rule in my opinion is as follows: If a canal is built before a highway which crosses it, the expense of constructing a bridge must be met by the city. But if a canal is cut through a highway already existing, then the expense of bridging must be borne by the canal company. As authority for this is the opinion of the court in the case of Perley vs. Chandler, 6 Mass. 458.

The following are the bridges in the city of Lowell, which the Locks and Canals Co. are bound to maintain.

Over Pawtucket canal on Merrimack, Broadway, School and Central streets.

Over the Eastern canal, on East Merrimack and Bridge streets.

Over Merrimack canal on Merrimack street (fifty feet wide).

Over the Western canal, on Merrimack street (fifty feet wide).

Over Northern canal, on Suffolk and Pawtucket streets.

Where a street has been widened after a bridge has been constructed, if the width of the bridge is also increased to comply with the new measurements, the expense of the extra expense thereby entailed must be borne by the city, although the Locks and Canals company may be bound to maintain a bridge at such point.

The bridges thus maintained at the joint expense of the city and Locks and Canals company are as follows:

Over the Merrimack canal on Merrimack street.

Over the Western canal, on Merrimack street.

Over the Eastern canal, on East Merrimack street.

Over the bridges over the various canals must be maintained by the city at its own expense.

Respectfully submitted,
Wm. W. Duncan,
City Solicitor.

FUNERALS

MULLIGAN—The funeral of John Mulligan took place this morning from his late home, 423 Broadway, and was largely attended, many of his friends being present at the mass in St. Patrick's church, of which the deceased was a devoted and faithful attendant. Rev. Fr. Fitzgerald celebrated the mass. The choir, directed by M. J. Johnson, sang the Gregorian chant, "Agnus Dei." The organ was played by Miss Alice Murphy. A sweet soprano, Carthy sustained the solos. "De Profundis" was rendered as the body was borne from the church. The burial was in the Catholic cemetery. The prayers at the grave were read by Fr. Fitzgerald. The bearers were Michael Maloney, Andrew Keefe, Martin Sullivan and Thomas Connors. The floral offerings were very beautiful. The following were among them: Standing cross inscribed "At Rest" from Marie Jucque pillow inscribed "John" from Julia Connors, a large wreath inscribed on ribbon "In Peace" from Mrs. Connors. The funeral was in charge of C. H. Molloy & Sons.

WON BY DARK RONALD

Being thus prepared with heart and mind cultivated, you go forth with a positive, yet perplexing problem before you. And what is this problem? It is this: How shall you best manifest the Catholic training which you have received? Catholic education have accomplished? It is curious to remark, that the most effective way of recommending Catholic education, is the good example given to others by its graduates. With your claims to superiority, others may well ask: "What Catholic young woman has distinguished herself by her moral and intellectual training, as the so-called representative Catholic? If you, I repeat, are not more elevated, more honest and more upright in your dealings, more exemplary in your lives and conduct than others who have been favored with Catholic training, the world will draw, will be that Catholic training and Catholic religion with all its high claims is no better than any other. You may not fully realize the responsibilities that by your education rest upon you. You are not only required to be a good example as educated Catholics, young women, but you are obliged to contribute by every means in your power to promote the interests of your church and the extension of its benefits throughout the world. You cannot be indifferent in the sphere in which your education has placed you. After many years of study you have realized that there are millions of the whole range of human thought and human history that emanate from the others. Be ever mindful that many things conducive to the happiness, no less to the honor, of the circle in which you are placed. Kindness, forbearance, politeness in the common sense, should dominate your character. The ordinary courtesies of life should not be disregarded, they should not be considered as trifles, or as solicitude for one another's comfort, or as bringing system and order into your lives. God is the Father, God is the God of order, therefore be wise according to order, lives according to God." "Order is heaven's first law," is a power in education; you have acquired it within these sacred walls. You manifest it to the world as you move in your lives.

And now you go forth with the promise of your lives, and written: You take with you a precious possession, the truly Catholic spirit. What will be the book of your future achievements? It now for the most part, rests with you. Whatever talents you carry with you will be unproductive if not improved by judicious reading and unremitting industry. The God of the talents with which God, in His infinite wisdom, has so richly endowed you. Let not one of them be bidden away but let them be productive and for your church, for your home, and for the world at large. And when, for this noble and praiseworthy end, you, you will solve faithfully and conscientiously, the problem which awaits you, and then, at the close of your lives, when the last ray of light breaks in upon your souls, may you be able to say that Blessed Light of the tabernacle which

IN POLICE COURT

Number of Offenders Given Direct Sentences

Antonina Gratzki was arraigned before Judge Hadley this morning on complaint charging her with assault and battery on William Brown. According to the testimony offered, the defendant met Brown on the common and after pinching his sore hand, lapped his face a couple of times. She was found guilty and a fine of $10 imposed.

Assault in Hale Street
George W. Bissonnette pleaded not guilty to a complaint charging him with assault and battery on Albert Des Rosiers.

Albert Des Rosiers, the complainant, who is a collector for the Franklin-Hoodman Corp., testified that yesterday morning he had occasion to go to a house in Hale street for the purpose of collecting some money. While inquiring for the residence of the party for whom he was looking he was met by Bissonnette, who called him a spy. Some words followed and witness said that after calling him vile names Bissonnette struck him.

Several witnesses testified that they saw the defendant strike Des Rosiers. George W. Bissonnette, a painter, said that he did not know who Des Rosiers was until yesterday. He said, however, that he had noticed Des Rosiers around places where he had been working recently and yesterday accused Des Rosiers of being a spy. Des Rosiers denied that he was a spy. Witness said that Des Rosiers called him a spy and he ordered the former to get away. Des Rosiers refused to go, and Bissonnette pushed him out of the way. The defendant denied that he struck the complainant. Bissonnette was found guilty and fined $10. He appealed.

Held for Grand Jury
The case of Delos Paris and Audienne Bowen, charged with adultery, which was started yesterday morning, but abruptly stopped owing to the lack of preparation on the part of the government, was resumed this morning. Several witnesses who reside in the same building occupied by the defendants testified that they were given to understand that Paris and Bowen woman were married.

Sgt. Alexander Duncan who arrested the pair said that they said they had been living together for five or six years.

Paris said that he was married but did not know the whereabouts of his wife. He said that he boarded with the Bowen woman.

Mrs. Bowen denied that she ever had any improper relations with Paris. The pair were held under $300 bonds on their appearance before the superior court.

Drunken Assault
George Martin, a young man, pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with assault and battery on Lydia C. Beauregard. Miss Beauregard was talking along the street this morning when Martin approached her and assaulted her. A young man who was in the vicinity at the time was attracted to the scene by the cries of the young woman and held Martin for the police.

Martin was given a four months' sentence to jail, the court adding that it was not sure that he had imposed a sentence heavy enough for the offense.

Drunken Offenders
John P. Buckley, a third offender, pleaded for another chance, stating that he had work to go to. He was given a suspended sentence of five months in the house of correction and placed on probation for six months.

James Bourke, a third offender, will

FUNERALS
DUPREZ—The funeral of Mrs. Mizael Duprez took place yesterday morning from her home, 210 Pawtucket street, with solemn funeral services at St. Jean Baptiste church, which were largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Frs. Barrette, Lamothe and E. J. O. M. L. officiated. The choir sang; Perrault's funeral mass under the direction of Dr. Calise and Arthur J. Martel played the organ. The bearers were six nephews of the deceased, Clement, Henri and William Duprez, and Louis, George and Octave Gaudette. St. Anne's sodality was represented by Mesdames Legare, Champagne, Lirette, St. George Ducharme, Guertin, Lamothe and Landry. Among relatives present from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. Prudent (Halo) of Lynn, Mr. and Mrs. Aime Dudenaine and Mrs. Prappier of Worcester, and Mrs. Evariste Marcotte of Richelieu, Que. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. Rev. Fr. Barrette officiated at the grave. Undertaker Joseph Albert had charge.

DOUGLASS—The funeral of Herbert Douglass was held yesterday afternoon at his late residence, 83 B street, and was largely attended by many relatives and friends.

Rev. J. P. West of the Highland Methodist church officiated, and there was singing by Misses Hattie Perkins, Bernice Parker, Ethel Hadden, and Mr. Percy A. Yarnold. Among the many beautiful flowers were the following: Large pillow incribed "Father," Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Douglass; large wreath incribed "Brother," from the brothers and sisters; wheat, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Cross, and sprays from the following: Miss Willa Romer and Rosa A. Romer; Mr. and Mrs. R. Yarnold and family; Chelmsford street Free Baptist church; Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Olney; Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Shorey; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Clark and family; the home department of the Chelmsford street Baptist church; Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Beniston; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Thompson; Miss Dora Truax; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pangburn; Mr. C. J. Henderson; Mrs. M. Dillon and R. Henderson.

The bearers were Charles A. Douglass, A. W. Clark, Richard Clark and Mr. Houder. Burial was in the family lot in the Westlawn cemetery under the direction of Undertaker Albert H. Bixby.

WALSH—The funeral of Leo Walsh, infant son of Michael J. and Mary Walsh, took place yesterday afternoon from the home of his parents, Church street, North Chelmsford, at 2 o'clock. The burial was in the family lot in the Catholic cemetery, where the grave was completely covered with flowers, the offerings of many sympathetic friends. The funeral was under the direction of J. F. O'Donnell & Sons.

DEATHS

HADLEY—Harvey Hadley, for many years a resident of this city and engaged here, until a few years ago, in the market business, died late last night at his home, 71 Canton street. His age was 74 years, 2 months and 3 days. Mr. Hadley had been seriously ill for some months past.

Mr. Hadley was born in Peterborough, N. H., April 10, 1835. He was the son of Ethan and Betsy T. Hadley and was one of a family of 14 children, 11 of whom lived to have homes of their own. Those of the large family who are alive are: Mrs. Phoebe Hadley Cartier of Caryville, Mass., the oldest being 86 years; Albert A. Hadley of Lowell, the youngest, aged 52 years, and George W. Ethan Addison, Darius and Eliza Hadley, and Mrs. Edwin Whittey. Mrs. Charlotte Stowers, another sister, died in May last, at her home in Ashland, Mass. Mr. Hadley married Mary M. Fiske in Whitefield, N. H., May 22, 1856. She survives him, also three children, Mrs. C. E. Ballard of Peterboro, N. H., and Floyd and Frank I. Hadley of this city, and two grandchildren, Maude Eva Hadley and Mrs. J. A. Lodge of Manchester, Mass.

Mr. Hadley came to Lowell in 1881 and went into the market business in School street. His business was increased and in 1887 he moved into the Highland hall building, in Branch street. He remained there until 1902, when, owing to poor health, he retired for a time. The following year, however, he entered in business again, in the place in School street, where he had been located in this city. In 1905 his health grew worse and he sold out his business. Since that time he had been in a state of gradual decline.

Mr. Hadley was a much respected man, and one who was the soul of honesty and fair dealing. He made friends during his years in this city, and he was one much devoted to his home and his family.

MURRAY—John P. Murray died last night at his home, 26 Kinsman street. He was a well known resident of that section of the city, and was a member of the Holy Name society of the Sacred Heart church. He leaves a wife, Margaret, six children, William, John, Joseph, Esther, Margaret and Eugenia, a mother, Mary, two sisters, Bridget and Elizabeth, and one brother, Andrew.

DUNN—Hector L. Dunn died yesterday morning at his home, 283 Moody street, aged 58 years, 6 months. He leaves a wife, his mother, Mrs. Hector Dunn, who is 92 years old, a brother, George Dunn, both of Lowell, and two sisters, Mrs. Pierre Langlois of Michigan and Mrs. Marcoux of New Adams. He was a member of the Union Samuel de Champlain.

AMADON—Charles L. Amadon died yesterday at his home in Monson, Mass., at the age of 79 years. He leaves one son, Frederick C. Amadon, one stepson, V. H. Brown of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Robert Marshall of Cambridge.

CUDDY—James Cuddy, aged 62 years, died Tuesday night at his late home, 1002 Central street. The deceased was an old resident of Lowell, and has been a member of St. Peter's church for many years. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife, two daughters, Miss Mary of California, and Miss Lizette of this city, two sons, Daniel and Henry M. of this city. Friends

HADLEY—Died, in this city, June 15th, Harvey Hadley, aged 74 years, 2 months, 3 days. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late residence, 71 Canton street. Friends invited without further notice. Undertaker George W. Healey in charge.

DELANO DECLINES

CHICAGO, June 16.—A preference for railroad over diplomacy, coupled with a desire to continue his work and his home in Chicago were the reasons assigned by Frederick A. Delano, president of the Wabash railroad for declining the honor conferred upon him by President Taft in offering him the post of minister to China.

"I have no inclination for public life said Mr. Delano, nor do my ambitions or schooling lie in that direction. I believe I can accomplish more where I am and that I am trying to do for the development of railroads at home."

MATRIMONIAL

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday at 62 Fisher street when Mr. Louis Sarre and Miss Alice Chapdelaine were united in marriage by Rev. J. H. Paradis. The bride was becomingly attired in white crepe de chine trimmed with silk fringe and rare old lace sent her from Paris by the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Auguste Sarre. She also wore a tulle veil caught with a diamond tiara, the gift of the bridegroom, and carried bride roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Gertrude Leith, wore pink material and carried Killarney roses. The best man was Mr. Harry Stevens. The wedding march, to which the bridal party entered the drawing room, was played by Mrs. Horace Paradis.

Following the customary luncheon was served and at 12 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Sarre left in an automobile for New York. They said they were on the Mauretania for a three months' tour abroad.

MURPHY INSANE

When He Attacked and Killed Five Men

CAMBRIDGE, June 15.—It was while suffering from delusional insanity that John J. Murphy, a pig-sticker in the North Packing Co., of Somerville, slew five of his fellow workmen and wounded three others on June 5, according to the report of two alienists in the superior court today.

After hearing the report Judge Layton acted at once by ordering Murphy sent to the state institution for the criminal insane at Bridgewater.

The alienists, Drs. Knapp and Baldwin, declared that Murphy had been a victim since last January. He told the doctors that he had been persecuted by his fellow workmen.

Murphy was at work on the seventh floor of the Packing company on the afternoon of June 5, when he suddenly stopped killing pigs and with his long keen-edged knife slashed Dr. Hayes, a government inspector who happened to be nearest and then drove the workmen before him like a herd of frightened sheep down the stairs, killing two and wounding two others. All the victims were stabbed through the heart.

Murphy was struck down and finally overpowered. He was taken to Bridgewater shortly before noon today leaving at his home a wife and three children.

DANGEROUS CRISIS

It Looks Like a Revolution in Honduras

NEW ORLEANS, June 16.—The Times-Democrat today says: Events are marching on toward revolution in Honduras according to despatches received yesterday by the local business houses engaged in Central American trade. The country faces a most dangerous crisis probably the most serious since the fall of General Manuel Bonilla in 1906. The despatches say that Lacerba and the northern coast provinces of the unsettled country are in open revolt and have sent emissaries to New Orleans to persuade Bonilla to return and take possession of the government. President Davila has appealed to the state department of the United States gunboat Paucaucan is patrolling Criba harbor to prevent sanguinary outbreaks.

Gen. Bonilla is in New Orleans and it was stated yesterday that he had secured his passage to Belize, Honduras, for next Thursday on the steamship M. T. Ingo as had also Mr. Fausto Davila, a step-brother of President Davila. They stoutly deny, however, that there is anything significant in their departure.

BUTLERS-EDSONS
GAME TO DECIDE PENNANT SCHEDULED FOR TOMORROW
The deciding game of the season in the Grammar School league will be played Thursday afternoon at Spalding park.
Two weeks ago the Edsons and the Butlers met and the game ended in a dispute, the score being 2 to 2, when the game was called off.
The Edsons have the better chance to win the pennant because the Butlers have lost one game and the Edsons won all they played. If the Butlers win this game, they will have to play another while the Edsons will win it. It will finish the season, and the latter team will receive the pennant. The Butlers for the Edsons will be the old reliable, Breen and Roane, while the Butlers will have Campbell on the slab and Steele on the receiving end.

BASEBALL NOTES.
The second game on Jake Stan's right hand is still badly swollen as the result of a ball thrown by Eddie Cicotte in Saturday's game. The injury will keep the first baseman out of the game for a day or two longer.

The schedule calls for a double header with the Athletics Saturday, but Pres. Taylor and Manager Mack have arranged to have the extra game over to the following Monday as a double-header, so that the fans will have to be content with one good live game Saturday.

The Red Sox and Tigers are having a merry race for the base running honors in the American league.

One of the Quaker scribes notes that Boston played four games without the semblance of an error against the Athletics and then returned home to make about 20 errors against the three western clubs in eight games.

The Chicago White Sox have taken the lead in fielding, Boston dropping from first to fourth place in one week.

Bush of Detroit is the leading runner of the American league, with 29 to his credit.

Pitcher Steele of the Altoona club of the Tri-State league has been secured by the Cincinnati club for a tryout this fall.

Garry Herrmann, chairman of the National commission, will leave for Los Angeles July 5. The highest honor in Eldorado is what Garry is now after. Cincinatti magnate will make a bigger hit even than the Old Roman Comiskey made on the Pacific coast.

Clark Griffith's Red Birds are now leading the National league with the stick and stand sixth in fielding.

Tuesday night bouts of the Army association last night and boxed three fast exhibition rounds with the trainer, George Byers. Johnson was well rewarded by a large audience, and made a speech in which he stated that no one had yet covered the $5000 forfeit he had posted on returning from Australia, that the sporting reporters of the country had picked Ketchell as the logical candidate to meet him, and he hoped the battle would be won or lost on his merits and the best man wins. Johnson referred briefly to his early training in Boston and declared himself a Bostonian.

Boxing Gossip
Young Erne and Johnny Frayne have been matched to box in San Francisco June 25.
Jim Kendrick, the English bantam, will meet Young Pierre in Philadelphia in two weeks.
Young Mahoney and Edw. McGorty will clash in St. Paul with the latter part of this month.

The boxing promoters of Wisconsin claim that they were double-crossed by politicians, else the boxing bill would not have been vetoed by the governor.
Joe Choyenski is again trying to work up a match between himself and his rival, Jim Corbett. Choyenski ought to know that the public wants to see live boxers clash and not "dead ones."

THE JAP TROUBLE

Situation in Hawaii Being Investigated

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Although no official information has reached the state department in regard to the Japanese trouble in Hawaii, the situation is being carefully watched. Mr. Negoro, the editorial staff of the Japanese publication Jiji, has appealed to the Japanese foreign office on the ground that his treaty rights were violated by the territorial authorities raising his office last Friday. Tokio has not taken the matter up with the officials as being carefully watched. It is shown that the raid on the Jiji occurred as described in the state department probably will take the position that Negoro's remedy lies in the courts in accordance with the treaty of 1904.

DEATHS

OGILVIE—The Clinton Daily Item of June 11 had the following:
At seven o'clock Thursday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Oxley, 67 Olive street, occurred the demise of Mrs. Margaret Ogilvie, who though a resident of Clinton for but a short time ended her earthly career. Mrs. Ogilvie was born in St. John, N. B., but with her family has resided in Boston since the death of her husband which occurred some twenty-five years ago.

She is survived by five children, Miss Eva, Marjorie, Heber and Hazen of Boston, and Mrs. Oxley of this town; four brothers, Michael and John living in St. John, and William and Martin Foley of Still Water, Minn. The funeral was held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Oxley on Olive street, this forenoon and a high mass of requiem was chanted by Rev. John J. O'Connell, M. A., of Clinton. Miss Mamie Kelly, residing during the services, "I Shall See Him Face to Face," and "Nearer, My God, to Thee," as the remains encased in a beautiful quartered oak casket were borne from the church, by most intimate friends of the sorrowing family. The bearers were Joseph Oxley, John Graves and John Fierley of Clinton, Bartholomew Connolly and George Foley of Boston and John W. Hefferman of Leominster. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Burial in St. John's cemetery.

TRAINING SCHOOL

Beautiful Graduation Exercises Held Last Evening

Associate Hall Crowded With
Friends of Pupils and Pupil-
Teachers — Address by Prof.
Charles Zueblin

The annual graduation of the Training school took place in Associate hall last evening with a large attendance. On the platform were the pupils of the school, the pupil teachers, the faculty, the members of the school board and the speaker of the evening, Hubbard's orchestra furnished music. The platform was also prettily adorned with flowers.

As the speaker of the evening, Prof. Charles Zueblin, had to take an early train he was presented first on the program by Miss Gertrude Edmund, principal of the school who made a graceful speech of welcome.

At the close of Prof. Zueblin's address Miss Edmund introduced Miss French who is employed by the Florence Crittenden society to assist school physicians by investigating conditions in the homes of the children. Miss French spoke in a most interesting manner.

Miss Edmund addressed the grad-

service and the wealth of opportunity in a teacher's life.

The Graduates

The names of the teachers graduated are as follows: Mary Helena Collins, Sadie Agatha Connors, Grace Eliza Common, Elizabeth Anna Conway, Kathleen Driscoll, Frances Louise Donovan, Laura Frances Greene, Mary Julia Moynahan, Katherine Philomena O'Brien, Edith Tasker Sampson, Leona Mildred Small, Louise Claire Thomas and Rena Jenks Thomas.

The names of the graduates of the grammar school are as follows: Henry K. Gerish, Mary I. Hey, Sherman C. Blair, Henry C. Richter, Richard O. Sykes, Mabel A. Elwell, Harold J. Wilde, Hamozash de Maundean, Fred Marshall, Daniel Joseph McGeers, Charles Ortel, Daisy Lowney, Joseph Henry Wood and Marion E. Kimball.

After the exercises there was a pleasant informal reception.

Prof. Zueblin's Address

Prof. Zueblin's subject was "Industrial Education," and he spoke in part as follows:

"Industrial education means to most people the training of the hands of factory workers. I should like to use it tonight in a much broader sense, in which I may take the liberty of implying that you all need industrial education. It is needed by the employer, by the employee and by the public.

"We are a little inclined to overlook the employer. The average employer of labor does not know much about working people. He may know something about the service that he buys, but he usually does not know much about working people. If he has risen from the ranks himself he is less likely to know, than if he has not, for we become surrounded by new social conditions and very rapidly get into an entirely new atmosphere, and forget the scenes of our youth.

"But if the employer needs to be educated in regard to labor, what shall we say about the workman? The average workman does not understand any of the commercial processes by which his goods are marketed. The mere making of a good product does not get it sold. The industrial education of the workman must be not merely of his hand and eye, but must enable him to understand the great mysterious processes of business.

"What shall we say about the public, the great, impersonal, conscienceless public, that is looking, generally, for one of two things, either things that cost less than they are worth, or things that cost more? The great power behind all the employers of labor is the purchasing public. Its employees include those that we commonly call employers, as well as the employees.

"John Mitchell said that the average American workman expects always to be a workman. That is a truism, but newspaper writers get hydrophobia over it. Yet it is unfair to persuade the average boy to devote himself to the idea of becoming president. The sooner we become interested in the belief that they are to remain workmen, and educate them for that and reconcile them to that, the better.

"This training is to be not only for efficiency, but also for adaptability. The function which the teacher has is to prepare the American boy and girl for adaptability to meet the new situation. Things do not stay as they are, even in our old-fashioned New England towns.

"The big business organizations can not get enough of the men who know how to manage men. We must give to every individual who has this latent ability, a development of that ability, and I personally believe it is inherent in every individual."

"Referring to our textile school, which is preparing young men for work in our great local industries, the professor said he met on the train one night, the young men going back to Lawrence, from this school. 'Some of them,' he said, 'came here supplees, in order to take advantage of this opportunity for education. Is it any wonder that the principal waxes enthusiastic? But I asked him what he was going to do for the boys who do not care enough for education to go supplees, and he said he did not think he could do anything for them.

"Now, I want to say to these graduates that they will have to do something for those boys, too. That will be their hardest task, to take the ordinary boy and girl and make the best possible out of them. Genius will take care of itself, but how about the boy who does not want to make those sacrifices? We must somehow or other throw wider open the doors of school for him, and give him the power of adaptability.

"In addition to adaptability, we want to train the workers in efficiency. Here for the world! Surely we have shown our efficiency in getting market for our goods. It is the foreigner, the American workman, when he succeeds, becomes an over-seer, an employer, a capitalist. Men are everywhere complaining of the quality of the workmanship of our boys and girls that come out of our schools. We will have to go to school ourselves, as a nation, to Germany and even to Japan.

"If we are to have adaptability and efficiency, we must give to the workers an interest in their work.

"What can the school do? It can give the boys and girls of America an elementary education. Do you appreciate that not one-half of the children of free America ever go through the eighth grade? They are drafted into work before they are prepared.

"What next can you give to the average child in school? At least a general education. We ought to have some appreciation of the finer things of life, no matter what our future occupation is going to be. If we are going to be scavengers and street cleaners, at least more reason for knowing something about art to begin.

"But, you ask, how can we? Surely the industrial education will have to crowd out some of the other things! But we want to go more into the rudiments of culture, and we can do it. If our education is scientific, if we give the children a lot of literary and scientific instruction in the morning and let them work with their hands all the afternoon, we can combine a better literary education than we give them now, with an industrial education.

"The English literature alone. We cannot possibly compass it. We should therefore select for each child that thing which will do him most good, and that he will remember.

"The old-fashioned pedagogue will tell you that there is discipline in these things. Yet, if you can be taught something that you will remember and at the same time get discipline, that is the thing you ought to be taught.

"The boy in our industrial school of the future who shows early proficiency in metals, let us give him history from the standpoint of metals. Raw minerals in the earth, the uses in which they are put. Think of the history of metals, and you think of the history of civilization; but you can think of the whole line of kings and queens, and get no light on civilization.

"Then there is the boy who likes to work in wood. There is the primeval forest; the uses of lumber, all the evolution of architecture. Even the dominant religion of our country comes from a carpenter.

"Teach literature and science in the same way.

"Suppose you teach a boy history from the standpoint of metals and he turns out a minister. Well, it never will hurt him to remember some of the content of his disciplinary studies, a thing which he does not do now. I spent a series of painful years forgetting five years of Hebrew, when I might have been studying economics."

"On the subject of local education, he said that the textile school of Trenton, N. J., has developed the work in play to the point where the bricklayers' union requires one year of instruction in that school, as a condition of admission to the Union.

"The consumer, he said, needs industrial education in order to appreciate products of labor. 'Every time you buy a yard of cloth or a pound of butter or sugar, do not forget that you employ all of the labor that goes into it. You are responsible for all the conditions. We buy clothing that is manufactured in sweat shops, and we get diseases. Yes; but do not forget that the people in sweat shops have diseases too, and that is as bad as for us to have them. Some day we are going to have conscience in these things.'

"Speaking further along the line of local education, he said: 'Quite recently, the people of your city discovered that they were responsible for one of the best painters of modern times, and they have rescued his house. Gradually we are waking up."

FIRE EQUIPMENT

COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS DID NOT TAKE ACTION

The question of appropriating $20,000 for new fire equipment and fixtures went to the committee on appropriations last night. The expenses recommended by the committee on fire department were as follows:

Auto protective $550; hose wagon, Central fire station $500; aerial ladder, Centralville fire house, $300; equipment for Centralville fire house $350; new fire engine for Pawtucketville, $2250.

Councilman James Flanagan of the committee advocated that $4700 be expended for an aerial truck, and that $3500 be expended for fittings for the Centralville fire house; also that $2900 be used in repairing the Pawtucketville fire engine, instead of buying a new engine.

Councilman Kilpatrick favored the expenditure of $20,000 for fire apparatus. No action was taken and the committee adjourned to next Monday night.

TOBACCO GROWERS PROTEST

HARTFORD, Conn., June 15.—As a result of a meeting of the New England Tobacco Growers a long despatch protesting against the enactment of any legislation giving free entry into this country to Philippine tobacco was sent to United States Sen. Lodge yesterday by Marcus L. Floyd, chairman of the legislative committee.

The despatch says that the tobacco growers regard that part of the Payne bill which provides for the free entry into this country from the Philippine Islands of a certain amount of cigar leaf tobacco and a certain number of cigars as the greatest menace that has ever threatened the tobacco industry of the country.

How to Stop Baldness

Woods Hutchinson, M. D., widely known as a writer of authority, says in the Cosmopolitan Magazine for February, 1909: "The main hope of stopping the advance of baldness lies in the direction of improving the general health and vigor, while at the same time keeping the scalp and the hair in a clean, antiseptic, well-ventilated condition. Avoid using too strong soaps, strong alkalis, such as ammonia and soda, and too hot water, as all of these take out too much of the natural lubricant, or oil, of the hair, and leave it dry and harsh." Birt's Head Wash is recommended as a perfectly safe preparation for cleansing the hair and scalp. It is a mild, antiseptic preparation, made of Refined Soap, Cochon Coconut Oil, Glycerin, White of Eggs and Salicylic

Acid. This is a formula that comes well within Dr. Hutchinson's recommendation, as it contains no free alkali or ammonia and it puts the scalp and hair in a vigorous, healthful condition. After using Birt's Head Wash, your hair will possess a lustre and sheen that no other remedy can bestow, while your scalp will be soft, white and clean. Remember always that cleanliness comes first of all in stopping falling hair, curing dandruff and itching scalp, and that for all these troubles Birt's Head Wash is the best thing you can buy, for you know exactly what it is made of. There are so many fakes and frauds for the hair on the market that you ought to be glad to get something that you can depend upon as being safe to use. Price 50c a jar.

THE BIG WHITE WAY

We have already endorsed Mayor Brown's idea of the big white way so far as Middlesex street is concerned. That street is altogether too dark when the stores are closed. It will be vastly improved by being lit up by a number of the large arc or other lights, such as are seen in front of some of our leading stores. If the cost is not exorbitant, it will bring satisfactory returns in the more attractive appearance of the streets by night and the banishment of all that is either literally or figuratively "shady."

OUR BARBAROUS FOURTH

We are nearing the annual orgy of noise and fireworks by which we celebrate the Fourth of July. It is right that we should celebrate Independence Day, but to go to such extremes that on the following day the dead will number 100 and the wounded 3000, is the height of absurdity.

It is a fact that since 1899 the average deaths on the Fourth, due to accidents in fireworks and other features of the celebration, have averaged fifty each Fourth, while the American Medical Journal last year reported the deaths from accidents at 163.

Nothing can stop this foolishness but strict regulations by towns and cities and rigid enforcement of the law.

The present style of celebration is little short of barbarous and yet it is only regarded as the uncooked merriment of the younger generation. But the noise is not by any means confined to the young. It is not uncommon to find that men old enough to have sense, have blown their fingers off in the careless use of explosives.

If the older people do not attempt to drop their insane antics on the Fourth, they cannot expect the young to lead the way.

If all the lunatics in the asylums of the United States were gathered together and let loose along the streets of Lowell, we venture to say they would not appear to be half as crazy as the people we shall have along our streets, and on the public parks and commons on the night before the Fourth.

There is a society in New York for the suppression of unnecessary noise, and it is doing excellent work in influencing cities and towns to suppress the bedlam that prevails on the Fourth and the evening before.

Of course it would be useless to try to stop people from killing themselves when they insist on pursuing so many methods of accomplishing that end. But they may condescend to concede a little in the matter of making less noise.

The noise is harrowing to the sick, the weary, the weak and the brain-fagged. It is often actually cruel in its effect upon nervous people while trying to invite much needed sleep.

Not only the noise should be eliminated but the cannon crackers, the fireworks, the noise, the use of explosives, toy pistols and shot guns should all be barred except under special license.

Unless the authorities in cities and towns decide to make our Fourth more sanely enjoyable, we shall never see much improvement in the lessening of noise or reducing the number of fatalities.

SECRETS OF LONG LIFE

We notice for the sake of comparison the "glad tidings" brought to his people by Dr. Otoman Zar Adusht Ha'nish of Chicago, the apostle of the Sun Worshipers in this country to the effect that nobody need ever grow old or experience sorrow or disease if they live according to the formulas of his cult. He made this declaration in Chicago a few days ago at a meeting of Mazzazzans at which Mother Shaw of Lowell sat at the right of the Master. We presume that Mother Shaw is henceforth immune against all the ills of life, sorrow, sickness and even death. This so-called "master" who is yet a young man, judging from his appearance, tells his followers that he is 64 years old and that he lived in other bodies before reaching this earth.

We are not interested in the tenets held by the Sun Worshipers and would not have referred to them, but for this catchy declaration that their methods of breathing, bathing, eating and dressing render them immune from disease and the usual infirmities that come with advancing age. Professor Fisher of Yale in an article in the World's Work gives some scientific theories on the means of overcoming as far as may be practicable the ills of disease. He points out the things that make for long life and condenses them into "knowledge, self control and enthusiasm." He advocates plenty of fresh air both for the lungs and the skin, proper bathing, exercising, resting, sleeping, thinking, feeling and willing. The secret of health, he holds, lies in moderation in food united with an even and cheerful disposition that looks upon the sunny side and avoids unnecessary worry over the affairs of every day life. Professor Fisher holds that a man arrives at maturity when 25 years and that he should logically live five times as long or 125 years.

The errors by which people shorten their lives, according to Professor Fisher, are immoderate eating or drinking, non-compliance with the laws of health and hygiene, worry, anger, jealousy, ill temper, fear, excitement, hate, grief or any other depressing emotions of the mind. We cut short our lives and do not live nearly so long as we might by strict adherence to the laws that promote health and happiness.

These statements are based upon the truths of science and not upon fake theories such as are dispensed by the representatives of various cults, bearing high sounding names. Unfortunately it is not always possible for everybody who understands the laws of health to follow them. Those who have money enough to enable them, avoid engaging in any unwholesome occupation or in over-taxing labor might prolong their lives by following the rules laid down by Professor Fisher. It is universally admitted that the people who lead an easy, quiet life without any nervous excitement and without indulging in interference of any kind, will naturally live longer, other things being equal, than those who live in the midst of excitement and are under continuous nervous strain.

SEEN AND HEARD

THE WORLD AT ITS BEST
Oh, it's good to get up in the morning when the wind blows through blossoming trees. And a fragrance, delightful and subtle, is wafted along on the breeze.
When the emerald hills in the distance seem nearer than ever before, and the wavelets make music as softly they ripple upon the wide shore.

How fair is the world when the dew-drops begin the wide meadows in May.
And how gladly we praise the Good Giver when roses besprinkle the way.
But the world's at its best, and its dearest, dark stretches are splendid to see.
When the check in the letter is larger than you dared to expect it would be.

"Sir, I wish to marry your daughter," uttered the young man.
"You do, eh?" exclaimed the fond parent. "Well, I have been expecting this, and, to be thoroughly orthodox, I shall put a few questions to you. Do you drink?"
"No, sir. I abhor liquor."
"You do, eh? Smoke?"
"I never use tobacco in any form."
"Well, didn't suppose you ate it. Do you frequent the race tracks?"
"I never saw a horse race in my life, sir."
"Um-m-m. Play cards for money?"
"Emphatically no, sir."
"Well, young man, I must say you are heavily handicapped. My daughter is a thorough society girl, and I want for the life of me see what she is going to do with you. However, it's her funeral, and if she wants to undertake the job—why, God bless you both!"—Washington Post.

Female bandits ought to be able to hold up trains.
The owner of an outfit still is anxious to keep it tight.
Dying is the only satisfactory thing some people ever do.
The hair bleacher is glad to take silver in exchange for gold.
An actress likes to think she is the darling of the gallery gods.
It sometimes happens that a bald-headed actor has a good part.
When the wife's away the badly trained husband will play—he can find a few congenial spirits willing to take a hand.—Chicago News.

The fisherman and his story are again with us for a season. The question at issue just now is whether the fish or the stories are the larger and better. One account in which the fish seems to rival the story for honors has recently crossed the ocean from London. A correspondent of a journal published in that city writes that he went fishing not long ago in a small lake outside the corporation limits. After fishing with trout nearly all day he finally succeeded in hooking one—a little fellow. The fish didn't seem to care very much at first and the fisherman confessed that when he discovered what a small one it was he did not care very much either. However, he decided that he would have to take something home to show for his day's work and so he pulled the trout toward his landing net. The fish came in along the surface with its side up, as fish sometimes do when they are dragged rather rapidly or when they are trying to decide what their course of procedure shall be. The fisherman found that his line was a little too long and so he began to reel in, rather carelessly, allowing the tip of the rod to drop. The fish sized up the situation and took immediate advantage of the favorable conditions. When only about two feet from the landing net, where the water was only two or three inches deep and so clear that every movement of the fish could be seen, it suddenly dashed toward a little patch of grass, seized several of the tough strands in its mouth and prepared to resist capture. It heaved valiantly, the fisherman being compelled to exercise considerable muscular power to pull it loose. When it was finally hauled within reach of the landing net and lifted out of the water, the fisherman discovered that a piece of the grass was still stuck in its mouth.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

The John Hubbard Curtis prize for highest excellence in literary or rhetorical work in the academic department of Yale university has been won by Henry D. Hammond, of Nashville, Tenn., a senior. The Scott prize in French is awarded to Charles R. Bentley of Rochester, N. Y.

The American girl is the greatest influencing element in European life today, says Edgar Salus in the July Smart Set. The rock-ribbed traditions of a titled aristocracy that has resisted every democratizing assault of modern times are crumbling before the inroad of the new ideas introduced by American women who have become members of European houses. Titles are losing their value as far as the men are concerned, and are becoming like feathers and ribbons, mere appendages of feminine adornment. Men formerly known by their dress; today they are known by their address. When society abroad becomes ideal, concludes Mr. Salus, clever and handsome "our Foreign Princesses" no man will be titled, and all the women will be.

Word comes from Warsaw, Russia, that Judah Loeb Perez, the Yiddish writer and poet, will make a tour of the United States and give a series of readings from his published works in Boston.

The statues of lions on the campus of Princeton college are to give place to a pair of tigers. The incongruity of the lions at a college whose emblem is a tiger has long been recognized, and at last they are to be removed by the students.

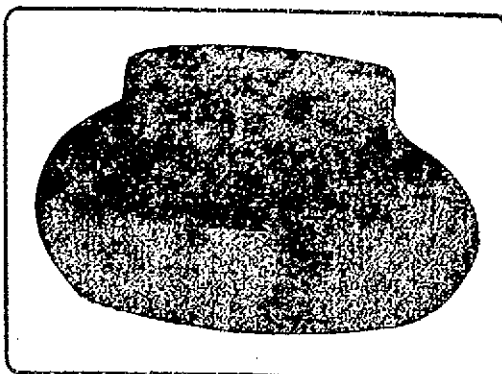

Sargent's picture of Mrs. Waldorf has been judged the "finest" by the British Medical Journal for its false anatomy. This journal finds fault with the "strained position of the sitter's shoulders, which are held somewhat high, the scapulae being pulled back so that their vertebral borders are almost touching one another. It is not the peculiarity of the artist or even of the model, for the many times that it is a pity for this habit of position will be handed down to succeeding generations." It says.

H. H. Southern and Julia Mathews have assumed control of the play which they appear together in the Shakespearean performance under the old management on the three coming seasons.

Harrison Grey Fiske has secured dramatic rights of W. J. Locke's "Spectator," and George Arliss will star in the dramatization, which has been entrusted to Philip Littell, who made a skeleton version of the play to submit to the novelist. Mr. Locke is improving it writes to Mr. Fiske. "I like the play in its present form, very much, and I must congratulate Mr. Lit-

IN TEWKSBURY

GRANGE WAS SCENE OF CHILDREN'S PARTY

Grange hall at Tewksbury was packed last evening. The event was a children's party by the Tewksbury grange. There was a pleasing musical program. Nine children entered a drawing contest and nine very good pictures were drawn. For the drawings, prizes of 15, 50 and 25 cents were awarded Ruth Tingley, Duncan Cameron and Thelma Wamaker. The judges of the contest were Mrs. Lay of Billerica, Mrs. Frank Fitzgerald of South Billerica and Fred Vincl of Dracut. The program was as follows:

Tingley: Dixie quartet, selection; piano duet, Esther Lewis and Eva Gray; duet, Thelma Wamaker and Evelyn Anderson; recitation, Raymond White; Dixie quartet, selection; piano duet, selection; piano duet, Misses Anderson; recitation, Ruth Tingley, solo, Mary Bushee; duet, Thomas McHugh and Irene Miller; solo, Alice Gulland; orchestra, selection.

Light refreshments were served and the evening proved a most enjoyable one.

Czar of Russia to Meet the Kaiser Tomorrow

ST. PETERSBURG, June 16.—Premier Stolypin, Foreign Minister Isvolsky, Count von Pourtal and the German ambassador and the German military and naval attaches left here today on board the Russian imperial yacht Polar Star, to join Emperor Nicholas in Puckipus bay, where the meeting between Emperor Nicholas and Emperor William will occur tomorrow. Emperor William already is on his way to the rendezvous.

Puckipus is a small retired bay on the south coast of Finland, about sixty miles from St. Petersburg. It has been chosen by Emperor Nicholas as his summer yachting headquarters on account of its climate, natural beauties and seclusion, a few Finnish villages being the only inhabitants of the region. The meeting of the two emperors in 1906 occurred in this same vicinity. All the conferences and festivities will be held on board the yacht Standard and Hohenzollern, the former with the Russian emperor and the latter with the German emperor on board.

As already announced, the importance of the visit lies in the manifestation of the friendly relations between the two emperors have not suffered by the recent friction over the Balkan situation. No change in the grouping of the powers or general lines of policy is contemplated, and it may be stated that the widely heralded menace of war with Germany resulting from the Balkan crisis really consisted in mediation undertaken at the initiative of Russia to prevent an Austro-Serbian conflict. It is expected that the conversations between the two monarchs and their ministers will touch upon a number of questions in which Russia and Germany are jointly interested, notably the Polish problem and the ultimate policy with regard to the Balkans and Turkey. The Cretan question also may be discussed. It is denied, however, that the reports from Persia will be taken up. Neither will Emperor William endeavor to mediate between Austria and Russia. The recollection of the recent conflict is still too vivid to justify an attempt to prove the relations between those two countries. Emperor Nicholas may question Emperor William in the matter of the development of the German navy.

KAISER'S TROPHY AND COMPOSER OF PRIZE SONG FOR BIG FESTIVAL

MATHEU NEUMANN
KAISER'S PRIZE

NEW YORK, June 16.—A chorus of 5000 voices, accompanied by an orchestra of 150 pieces, is a feature of the great songfest to be held in Madison Square Garden, New York, from June 16 to 22, inclusive. Half a dozen of the world's most famous soloists will be heard. The Kaiser's trophy, which the German emperor gave several years ago to stimulate among German Americans the art of song, will be competed for by the Kreutzer Quartet club of New York, the Concord Singing society of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., which has won it twice, the Junger Maennerchor of Philadelphia, the German Maennerchor of Newark and the Arion society of Baltimore. Herr Mathieu Neumann's prize song, "The Warning of the Rhine," has been selected for the competition. No fewer than 133 singing societies will compete in the various contests.

AN ELKS' CHARM

Presented to William F. Foye by Friends

About 30 of the friends of William F. Foye, the new proprietor of the Park hotel, tendered him a house warming at the hotel last evening and tested his ability to serve food, for they had served them a bountiful repast with turkey and the delightful fixings as the principal number on the menu. During the repast Buckley's orchestra furnished program of popular music. The pleasant affair was carried out under the direction of Mr. Robert Manning. There were friends present from Boston, Lynn, and Nashua, N. H.

During the evening Mr. Foye was presented with a beautiful Elks charm.

WESTFORD

The parade committee and the committee on July Fourth celebration held a meeting at the town hall last night to perfect the plans for the celebration.

The fire companies of the town have been invited to join in the parade, the Westford A. S. team and opposing team, the Foresters of Granville, and all the people of the town are invited to parade. It is open to all the people of the four villages, Granville, Westford, Forge Village and Brookside. Anyone wishing to have a float or join in the parade is cordially invited.

LIFE OF A PIMPLE

Complexions Are Cleared and Pimples Disappear Overnight Without Trouble.

The dispensers of Poslam, a new skin discovery, ask that notice be given that no one is urged to purchase it without first obtaining an experimental package. Those who have tried it will find the 50-cent box, on sale at Fells & Burdick's and Carter & Sherburne's, and all drug stores, is sufficient to cure the worst cases of eczema, where the surface affected is not too large. The itching ceases on first application. It will also cure acne, better blotches, scaly scalp, dandruff, and every other form of itchy, including itching feet. Being flesh colored and containing no poisons, the presence of poslam on exposed surfaces, such as the face and hands is not perceptible. Water and soap cannot be used in connection with it, as these irritate and prolong skin troubles sometimes even causing them.

As to the experimental package of poslam, it can be had free of charge by mail of the Emergency Laboratories, 22 West Twenty-fifth street, New York. It alone is sufficient to clear the complexion overnight, and to rid the face of pimples in twenty-four hours.

Word was received here yesterday of a clash between the Gloucester, Mass., fishing schooner Socrates Gardner and the French steam trawler on Quabo bank. The captain of the American vessel, according to reports of other captains, fired on the Frenchman with a rifle.

The steam trawler's mail was splintered by the shot, but otherwise the damage is believed to have been small. No person was injured so far as is known.

The firing is supposed here to have been the outcome of a long standing antagonism between the steam trawlers and handling fishermen. The French, American and New Foundland fishing schooners claim that the trawlers have done much damage to their gear, besides depleting their catches.

While the action reported here yesterday was the first in which weapons figured openly, it did not stand alone. The same vessels which fought the report of the Senator Gardner's firing, also reported that the captain of a French fishing schooner which had lost nearly all her outfit by another trawler, boarded the marauding trawler and brandishing a revolver in demanding that damages be paid him for the loss sustained. He was reportedly ejected from the steamer's deck.

In command of the Senator Gardner, the schooner reported to have taken the initiative in the action against the trawler, is Captain Vincent Nelson. The report stated that Captain Nelson had been awaiting for two days a chance to set his lines, before it was possible to dispose of his gear so that the trawlers might not damage them. But he had no sooner sent his dories out to set the lines than a large French steamer was seen to bear down upon them. The captain, which arrived yesterday said that the Frenchman approached so near that she carried away part of the Gardner's fishing gear.

As had been done many times before, Captain Nelson tried to reason the trawler into giving up. When that failed, his protests were ignored. Then rose to the surface the exasperation borne of continued reports and experience of antagonism by the trawlers, and Captain Nelson ordered brought on deck a rifle. Ammunition was not handy, but with American ingenuity he is said to have used lead slugs made out of mackerel bladders which had been cut in pieces to fit the rifle. It is alleged that as the Frenchman was in the act of pursuing the American schooner's trawls, Captain Nelson fired at the steamer.

During this time the dory crews which had been setting the trawls were still on the water. When Captain Nelson fired his shot he gave no thought to the dories. One of these was thrown on the top of a wave as the shot was fired, and the leaden missile narrowly missed the occupants. Captain Lawrence of L'Ardoise, Richmond county, C. B., had a narrow escape.

Balked in his first shot, the captain said that Captain Nelson again loaded with the same charge, and fired again. The shot this time raked the rail of the trawler. Except for a slight splintering, however, but the damage was done. No further effort was made to renew the combat, as the Senator Gardner is said to have hurried away, while the steamer made no attempt to follow.

It is the general opinion here and in St. Pierre that similar encounters are likely to continue, the trawlers persist in their present wide sway on the banks. Schooners have had all their gear carried away, and were forced home by their trips a complete loss.

BROWN UNIVERSITY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 15.—One hundred and seventy-five graduates of Brown university in cap and gown marched slowly down College hill in the morning sunshine to the old B. U. meeting house today and there held a gathering of distinguished clergymen, scholars and graduates, to receive their diplomas and their degrees. It was the first annual commencement at the university and there were a thousand in the line which followed the graduates down the hill.

The exercises were given by Rev. Dr. D. C. Johnson, D.D., of the University of Pennsylvania, D.D., president of this city and chairman of the Worcester of Providence, Mass.

ACCIDENTS

John P. Bicknell, aged 5 years, residing at 24 William street fell off a horse in the yard of his residence this morning and sprained his arm.

The arm was amputated by Dr. P. M. M. and is a severe amputation.

WOMAN INJURED

The ambulance was called about 10 o'clock last night to the O'Connell street, and from that house Mrs. M. Farrell, who had fallen down a flight of stairs, and received a bad cut on the length of her right arm. She was removed to the Lowell hospital.

THE ALDERMEN

Referred the "Light as Day" Proposition to Committee

The board of aldermen met last evening and referred to the committee on appropriations the order for the transfer of $2000 from the general treasury fund to provide for better lighting in Middlesex, Merrimack and Central streets. Alderman Connors objected to the order. He said it might be a good thing for the Electric Light company, but he didn't think it was a good proposition for the city. The contract under the proposition was for eight years.

A petition for relocation of Boston & Northern railroad tracks in Merrimack, Bridge and Middlesex streets, to conform with the plans for block paving those streets, was read. Thomas C. Lees, division superintendent of the road, explained that it was necessary in the course of improvements to lay tracks of a width of four feet, six inches.

An order accompanying the petition was unanimously adopted. Then there was read a joint communication from the mayor relative to the lighting of downtown streets. In this letter the mayor said, in part:

Lowell, Mass., June 15, 1909.
To the Members of the City Council.
Gentlemen—Our present system of lighting the downtown thoroughfares

of the business section, particularly Merrimack, Prescott, Central and Middlesex streets, and including Monument square, Merrimack square, Town's corner and Depot square, appears to me to be entirely inadequate, and a large proportion of our citizens are impressed with the same idea. This system has been in operation for practically 35 years without change or improvement, and in view of the growth of the city, especially the sections referred to, and for other strong reasons which I shall set forth, I have reached the conclusion that the installation at small cost of a more modern and effective system of street lighting is a matter of extreme necessity, and will materially assist Lowell in its development and progress.

This new system will mean a cost of about $6500 additional to the price we now pay annually, but the lighting will be several times more effective than the present system of arc lights. With the new system, the poles will be located every 50 feet on each side of the street. Each pole will have a cluster of four lights, 14 feet from the ground, giving a better diffused light. The plan calls for approximately eight light clusters in Monument square, near the Dutton street railroad crossing, and in addition to the two clusters recently installed in front of city hall, ten clusters in Merrimack square, or approximately 40 lights, six clusters at Town's corner, and eight clusters at the depot. The poles will extend from city hall to the depot, including Merrimack, Prescott, Central and Middlesex streets, every 50 feet. This will light the streets brilliantly, and at the same time the system will be modern, and at night it will be a sight of which every citizen can well feel proud.

The company is willing to begin work at once in order to have the new system installed by the first of September, in time for the great carnival week. This seems to me to be the most opportune time, as the company will be able to lay its conduits in Merrimack, Prescott and part of Middlesex streets in conjunction with the new paving. In Central and part of Middlesex streets the conduits will be laid beneath the sidewalks of the sidewalks, all the expense being borne by the Electric Light corporation. The corporation now charges $100 for each arc lamp. The cost of each new cluster will be $80, or $2250 a lamp.

If this work can be completed by carnival week, when thousands of automobiles will visit this city from every section of the country and people to the number of 200,000 will make Lowell their mecca, it will give the city an opportunity to advertise itself throughout the world, for the proposed system of lighting will not only be beautifying, but it will be unique.

In conclusion, and in brief, I am in favor of this project for the following reasons:

1.—It will be a benefit to the business interests of our city and to our taxpayers.

2.—It will benefit the large numbers of people who use these streets at night for shopping and promenade.

3.—It will beautify the streets and make them attractive, not only to our own people, but to visitors.

4.—It will make Lowell the only city in the east similarly lighted.

5.—It will improve property and induce property owners to improve their buildings.

6.—This system should be installed in conjunction with the new smooth paving.

7.—The streets at present are inadequately lighted and in places are so dark as to be dangerous.

8.—The improved lighting will eliminate in a measure the danger at grade crossings.

9.—This work should be done in time for carnival week.

10.—It will give us a modern system that will not need improvement for many years.

11.—All the people are in favor of better lighted streets, and approve of this project.

I believe that we can do nothing that will be more heartily sanctioned and approved by all classes of our citizens than to carry out this plan, and I respectfully recommend that the sum of $2000 be appropriated from the general treasury fund to be placed in the credit of the appropriation for lighting streets, and to be used for the purpose of paying for the proposed system of lighting in Merrimack, Prescott, Central and Middlesex streets for the remainder of the year.

Very respectfully,

Geo. H. Brown, Mayor.

An order accompanying the communication introduced by Alderman Gray, provided for the transfer of $2000 from the general treasury fund to street lighting to pay the additional expense for the year under the proposed change.

Alderman Stevens asked as to the time of the contract under the new proposition, and Mr. Hunscomb of the Electric Light corporation said eight years.

"I consider this a good thing for the Electric Light corporation," said Alderman Connors, "but I fail to see where the city is to be benefited. I notice the mayor speaks of the automobiles coming to Lowell, but I fail to see where that is going to do the city any good."

On motion of Alderman Dexter, seconded by Alderman Connors, it was voted to refer the order to the committee on appropriations.

The joint report of the committee on streets, that have to withdraw be given on W. T. S. Bartlett, on his petition to change the names of certain streets in Dawkinsville, was adopted in conference.

The locations in School street and Rutland road were voted the New England Telephone and Telegraph company.

Other business of a minor nature was transacted and the meeting adjourned at 10:15.

THE RAILROADS

PURCHASED MILLIONS OF TIES DURING 1908

WASHINGTON, June 16.—During the year 1908, the steam and electric railroads of the United States purchased more than 112,000,000 cross-ties, costing, at an average of 50 cents per tie, according to statistics just made public by the bureau of the census in cooperation with the United States forest service. This was some 40,000,000 ties less than the quantity purchased in 1907, when the total was approximately 153,700,000, the highest ever recorded. The decreased purchases in 1908, were, of course, chiefly due to the business depression which affected every line of industry. This forced most of the roads to purchase only the ties which were absolutely essential for renewals, and heavily cut down the purchase for new track. In 1908 only 1,431,000 cross-ties were reported as purchased for new track as against 23,557,000 in 1907. Of the total number of ties purchased for all purposes, the steam roads took approximately 94 per cent, leaving about six per cent for the electric roads.

It is very interesting to note the wide range of woods used for cross-ties. The preliminary report by the census bureau lists separately 15 classes or species. Of these the oaks are now and have always been by far the most important. The oak ties amounted to more than 48,000,000 or 43 per cent of the total quantity purchased. Next to these ranked the southern yellow pines, with 21,500,000, or 19 per cent of the total. It will be seen that the oaks and southern pines combined furnished nearly three-fourths of all the ties bought by the railroad companies last year. Cedar and chestnut supplied more than 8,000,000 ties each, and Douglas fir nearly as much. About 4,000,000 tamarack ties were purchased, nearly 3,500,000 cypress ties, and, in round numbers, 3,000,000 each of western pine and hemlock. Redwood, white pine, lodgepole pine, gum, beach, spruce, and several other woods were used in smaller quantities.

While the oaks, and particularly the white oaks, have always been the preferred woods for cross-ties and still form a large proportion of the total, the increasing prices which the roads have had to pay for satisfactory oak ties are forcing them to look more and more for substitutes. This accounts in part for the great variety of woods reported. While oak, untreated, makes a tie which gives excellent service for many years, but it has been found possible to take woods which naturally are not durable, give them a treatment with either creosote or zinc chloride, which will prevent decay, and thus get much longer service from them than can be secured from untreated oak ties. Among the woods which have been most largely treated so far are the yellow pines, particularly loblolly pine, Douglas fir, western pine, and lodgepole pine.

This year's statistics adds to the list two kinds of cross-ties which previously had not been reported in sufficient quantity to justify listing them separately. These are gum and beech. The purchases of gum ties in 1908 exceeded 200,000, while but slightly more than 15,000 of them were reported in the previous year. Of beech ties, the purchases in 1908 amounted to nearly 103,000, against but little more than 51,000 in 1907. These are woods which are distinctly not suitable for cross-ties unless they are given preservative treatment. Their increased use, therefore, is one of the many results of the progress of wood preservation in the United States. For many years beech had been one of the principal cross-tie woods in Europe, where its value when given chemical treatment was long ago recognized. It is not uncommon for European roads to secure from 20 to 25 years' service from beech cross-ties. Untreated they would not last long enough to warrant their use at all.

Investigations prove that the power can be developed at exceptionally low cost. The most important problems now to be faced are the division of the expense and the division of power to be developed between the government, state and the cities. The partnership in power, while novel, has been proven feasible. The power plant when built will be only a short distance from Fort Snelling, an immense military post, and convenient both to the state institutions and to St. Paul and Minneapolis. The government was represented in the conferences by Major C. S. Riche, in charge of upper Mississippi river improvement work. Major Shunk, the engineer who supervised the construction of the locks, and Major Brownell of Milwaukee, who had the assistance of Messrs. S. W. Miller, E. S. A., and J. R. Du Shanz, John Wade and G. W. Freeman, government engineers from the St. Paul office. Mayors Lawler of St. Paul and Haynes of Minneapolis, together with officers of the city governments, council members and business men, participated in the investigations. The report of the joint commission will be made to the board of engineers after which the project will be referred to Washington. Legislation will be required before St. Paul and Minneapolis will be able to participate in the cost.

NEW YORK, June 18—With President Samuel Gompers in the chair but unlikely to be able to attend all the sessions because of his approaching departure for Europe, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor at the opening of its quarterly meeting here yesterday adopted a resolution favoring the publishing of an international federation of labor.
 The resolution declared that such a federation, while not impairing the autonomy of the trade union movement in each country, would have for its purpose the promotion and advancement of the rights, interests and protection of wage workers.

The Sacred Heart Holy Name society held its regular monthly meeting in the school hall in Andrews street last evening, and it proved to be one of the most enjoyable sessions ever held by the organization and a most timber-attended. Mrs. W. J. Wood presided, the meeting called upon Rev. Lawrence G. O'Connell, M. C., spiritual director of the society, for remarks. Rev. O'Connell discussed the society's progress and then introduced as speaker of the evening, Rev. James P. P. O'Connell, secretary of the Archdiocese, who presided.

Leo XIII and the present pontiff, Pius X. As Mr. O'Connell had the distinguished honor of having had audiences with both of these holy men, his remarks were of especial interest. He said that the former pope impressed one upon first meeting and all other meetings, as being a man of great dignity, of great power, and of wonderful intellectual powers. On the other hand the present pope is congenial, yet upon the present pope is conceded to have the faculty of speaking to your audience.

Today's offering at the Theatre La Scala is an exceptional one in many ways. The feature picture, "A Mother's Choice," is a rarely beautiful story picture, showing the strength of mother love. "The Blue Legend" is a beautiful story of the affection of two old folks who lasts till death separates them. "Doty," "The Crushed Tragedian," both prove excellent laugh-makers. The illustrated songs of Charles Rogers and Mlle. Tessier, are extra good. Mlle. Tessier's solo, "Just a Little Word Called Welcome," is a novel and very tuneful selection.

REV. JAMES P. E. O'CONNELL

All of the local drug stores closed at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon for the reason that, on that day, prescriptions and drugs being sold for the time being and thoughts of a general good time being uppermost in the minds of the druggists and their clerks for today is the day of the annual outing of the Local Druggists' Association. The affair is being held at the local park and if the anti-enthusiasm displayed by the druggists counts for anything, the outing bids fair to be the most enjoyable event ever conducted by the association.

The druggists, with their clerks and friends left Merriam square on special cars at 12:45 o'clock and after enjoying an exhilarating ride in the electric cars, the park remained to the ball ground where a fine list of sports was pulled out.

While the ball game was in progress there was boxing on the advice, and the following program of sports: 100 yards dash for propellers, 200 yards dash for registered clerks, 160 yards dash for junior clerks, hop, step and jump, shoe race, egg race, the program closing with a race for the diving ball.

PRESIDENT TAFT

Wants a Tax Placed on Income of Corporations

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Recommending legislation looking to the placing of a two per cent tax on the net income of corporations and also the adoption of an amendment to the constitution providing for the imposition of an income tax without an appropriation among the several states, President Taft today sent to congress a message embodying his views on the subject. This action followed a protracted special meeting of the cabinet.

The amendment which he proposes should be made to the tariff bill provides for the imposition upon all corporations and joint stock companies for profit, except national banks, otherwise taxed, savings banks and building and loan associations, of an excise of two per cent on the income of said corporations. This is estimated by him will bring an annual revenue of $25,000,000.

"This is a tax on privilege and not on property," he says, "and is within the federal power without appropriation according to population."

The president's message was brought into the senate about 1:30 o'clock today while Senator Burton was making a speech in opposition to a duty on zinc ore.

When the purpose of the message was made known both republicans and democrats remained in their seats and listened attentively to the reading.

The text of the President's message is as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

It is the constitutional duty of the president from time to time to recommend to the consideration of congress such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient. In my inaugural address immediately preceding this session and stated the principles upon which I thought the revision should be effected. I referred to the rapidly increasing deficit and pointed out the obligation on the part of the framers of the tariff bill to arrange the duty so as to secure an adequate income and suggested that if it was not possible to do so by import duties new kinds of taxation must be adopted and among them I recommended a graduated inheritance tax as correct in principle and as certain and easy of collection. The house of representatives has adopted the suggestion and has provided in the bill it passed for the collection of such a tax. In the senate the committee on finance and the committee on the course of the debate indicate that it may not agree to this provision and it is now proposed to make up the deficit by the imposition of a general income tax in form and substance of almost exactly the same character as that in the case of Pollack vs. Farmers Loan & Trust Co. (157 U. S. 429) was held by the supreme court to be a direct tax and therefore not within the power of the federal government to impose unless appropriation among the several states according to population. This new proposal which I did not discuss in my inaugural address or in any message at the opening of the present session makes it imperative for me to submit to the congress certain additional recommendations.

The decision of the supreme court in the income cases deprived the national government of a power which by reason of previous decisions of the court was generally supposed the government had. It is undenied that the power the national government ought to have. It might be compensatory to the nation's life in great crises. Although I have not considered a constitutional amendment as necessary to the exercise of certain phases of this power, a mature consideration has arisen me that an amendment is the only proper course for its establishment to its full extent. I therefore recommend to the congress that both houses by a two-thirds vote shall propose an amendment to the constitution conferring the power to levy an income tax upon the national government without appropriation among the several states.

This course is much to be preferred to the one proposed of recommending a law one judicially declared to be unconstitutional. For the congress to assume that the court will reverse its self and to enact legislation on such an assumption with the expectation of popular opinion in the country, is a political construction of the constitution. It is a much wiser policy to accept the decision and then by the direct but amendment to the constitution.

Again it is clear that by the enactment of the proposed law the congress will not be but a mere rubber stamp, the pressure to meet the present emergency by putting on the statute book a law already there and never repealed.

S. 429) was held by the supreme court to be a direct tax and therefore not within the power of the federal government to impose unless appropriation among the several states according to population. This new proposal which I did not discuss in my inaugural address or in any message at the opening of the present session makes it imperative for me to submit to the congress certain additional recommendations.

The decision of the supreme court in the income cases deprived the national government of a power which by reason of previous decisions of the court was generally supposed the government had. It is undenied that the power the national government ought to have. It might be compensatory to the nation's life in great crises. Although I have not considered a constitutional amendment as necessary to the exercise of certain phases of this power, a mature consideration has arisen me that an amendment is the only proper course for its establishment to its full extent. I therefore recommend to the congress that both houses by a two-thirds vote shall propose an amendment to the constitution conferring the power to levy an income tax upon the national government without appropriation among the several states.

This course is much to be preferred to the one proposed of recommending a law one judicially declared to be unconstitutional. For the congress to assume that the court will reverse its self and to enact legislation on such an assumption with the expectation of popular opinion in the country, is a political construction of the constitution. It is a much wiser policy to accept the decision and then by the direct but amendment to the constitution.

Again it is clear that by the enactment of the proposed law the congress will not be but a mere rubber stamp, the pressure to meet the present emergency by putting on the statute book a law already there and never repealed.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Recommending legislation looking to the placing of a two per cent tax on the net income of corporations and also the adoption of an amendment to the constitution providing for the imposition of an income tax without an appropriation among the several states, President Taft today sent to congress a message embodying his views on the subject. This action followed a protracted special meeting of the cabinet.

The amendment which he proposes should be made to the tariff bill provides for the imposition upon all corporations and joint stock companies for profit, except national banks, otherwise taxed, savings banks and building and loan associations, of an excise of two per cent on the income of said corporations. This is estimated by him will bring an annual revenue of $25,000,000.

"This is a tax on privilege and not on property," he says, "and is within the federal power without appropriation according to population."

The president's message was brought into the senate about 1:30 o'clock today while Senator Burton was making a speech in opposition to a duty on zinc ore.

When the purpose of the message was made known both republicans and democrats remained in their seats and listened attentively to the reading.

The text of the President's message is as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

It is the constitutional duty of the president from time to time to recommend to the consideration of congress such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient. In my inaugural address immediately preceding this session and stated the principles upon which I thought the revision should be effected. I referred to the rapidly increasing deficit and pointed out the obligation on the part of the framers of the tariff bill to arrange the duty so as to secure an adequate income and suggested that if it was not possible to do so by import duties new kinds of taxation must be adopted and among them I recommended a graduated inheritance tax as correct in principle and as certain and easy of collection. The house of representatives has adopted the suggestion and has provided in the bill it passed for the collection of such a tax. In the senate the committee on finance and the committee on the course of the debate indicate that it may not agree to this provision and it is now proposed to make up the deficit by the imposition of a general income tax in form and substance of almost exactly the same character as that in the case of Pollack vs. Farmers Loan & Trust Co. (157 U. S. 429) was held by the supreme court to be a direct tax and therefore not within the power of the federal government to impose unless appropriation among the several states according to population. This new proposal which I did not discuss in my inaugural address or in any message at the opening of the present session makes it imperative for me to submit to the congress certain additional recommendations.

TRIAL BEGUN

Suit of Mayor Brown Against John H. Harrington of The Sun

The case of Geo. H. Brown, mayor, against John H. Harrington, proprietor of The Lowell Sun, for alleged libel, in the sum of $50,000, went to trial before Judge Pierce in the superior court shortly before noon today. Dennis J. Murphy appeared for the plaintiff and James J. Kerwin and Frederick R. Greenhalge for the defendant.

During a recess just prior to the calling of the case counsel on both sides held a consultation with the court in the latter's reception room.

Fourteen men were drawn for the jury, the plaintiff challenging Wm. H. Ryan, a carpenter of North Reading. When the jury was drawn Judge Pierce informed the jury that the case was a suit brought against a newspaper by the mayor of Lowell and stated that if any member had read any of the articles upon which the suit is based and believed that their opinions would be influenced by the fact they would be excused from service. Robert J. Shepherd, of Lowell stood up and was excused.

The jury selected was as follows: Anna S. Hamilton, Lowell, retired; William Blanchard, Tyngsboro, farmer; Edward C. Butterfield, Sudbury, farmer; Patrick H. Connolly, Braintree, spinner; James P. Connolly, Reading, express agent; Howard M. Goodnow, Sudbury, farmer; Charles D. Kimball, Reading, machinist; Arthur M. Plafie, Lowell, conductor; Fred K. Sinclair, Tyngsboro, farmer; Fred A. Snow, Chelmsford, bookkeeper; Archie W. Swallow, Dunstable, farmer; Edward D. Tuck, Chelmsford, farmer.

When the jury had been empaneled counsel for the plaintiff opened the case by reading the long declaration of plaintiff and defendant's answer. The declaration contains five counts, the first embodying a lengthy article published in The Sun on December 7, 1908. The other three relate to certain paragraphs in the article contained in court case.

In opening for the plaintiff, Mr. Murphy explained that at the time of the publication of the article in question the plaintiff was the nominee for mayor of one of the leading political parties in a heated and spirited campaign, and that the plaintiff before election The Sun published an article aimed to defeat Mr. Brown. He said the plaintiff would show that he never accepted any bribes from liquor dealers; that Supt. Moffatt never said he had taken out a license for the plaintiff; that the plaintiff was a native-born citizen of Lowell, and that the plaintiff was a native-born citizen of Lowell, and that the plaintiff was a native-born citizen of Lowell.

Mayor Brown Testifies

Mayor Brown and Mr. Wyman, keeper of the city reading room, were sworn for the plaintiff's side, and Mayor Brown took the witness stand.

In response to questions by his counsel, Mr. Brown gave in detail his life in Lowell with particular reference to his Spanish war experience, giving a rather detailed account of his travels in the army.

Mr. Kerwin interrupted to inquire if this testimony was competent. Judge Pierce said that it could be given to show what kind of a man the plaintiff is.

On his return to Lowell in 1901 witness said he was appointed to the police force, having taken the examination before he went to the war. In September 1903, he was appointed to the regular force. He served as a probationary officer for nearly a year. May 1, 1905, he was appointed a member of the board of police and remained a liquor inspector until May 1, 1904. He was then made inspector of minor licenses and after that went out on a route.

"While on the squad I generally acted with the others," said the witness, "but sometimes I acted alone. The superintendent handed the warrants to the head of the liquor squads. I can't remember whether the superintendent ever gave the warrants to any one else except on Saturday nights when we split up. On no occasion was a search warrant ever given to me. I made reports of my observations and gave them to my superiors. I remained a police officer until eight days after the last city election. On the afternoon of December seventh I purchased a copy of The Sun in front of The Sun building."

The paper was produced and marked as an exhibit.

Mr. Murphy then read from the article in which Mr. Brown is called a "low-down" and a "low-down" etc. "Did you know that?"

"How much did you have?"

"About $200 or $300."

"Did you ever receive any gift or gratuity of any kind?" asked Mr. Kerwin.

"No, sir. I never accepted a gift or gratuity of any kind," asked Mr. Kerwin.

"No, sir. I never accepted a gift or gratuity of any kind," asked Mr. Kerwin.

Witness replied that he couldn't remember.

"Do you know Margaret Fitzgerald?"

"I don't think so."

Mrs. Fitzgerald stood up and witness identified her.

"Did you visit her house in no license year?"

"I did with others."

"Did you ever do so?"

"I did not. I wouldn't go into her house alone."

"Did you ever go there to serve a summons?"

"Yes."

"Did you ask her for $200?"

"I did not. That's a lie."

"Did you ever threaten anything at her window to attract her attention?"

"I did not."

"Didn't she let down a speed from her window to you?"

"I did not."

"Didn't you go up alone and help her hide liquor before the others came?"

"I wouldn't go there alone."

"Didn't she give you about $200 during that year?"

"No. These questions are all bare-faced lies."

"No."

"You know him?"

"I do not."

"Didn't you inspect for minor licenses?"

"I was."

"And Mr. Corbett is a pawnbroker?"

"I don't know him."

"Did you ever tell Thomas Lennon that other liquor dealers had given you money?"

"No."

"Did you ever tell James Connors of Pleasant street how much money you collected?"

"I did not."

"Did you tell James B. Casey and James Spillane what you had collected for the Howe campaign?"

"I did not."

"Did you ever meet them at Spillane's house?"

"Yes, we talked about whether certain people were with Casey or not."

"Did you meet again in Mr. Spillane's house?"

"No, we met in Mayor Casey's house and I showed him a duplicate copy of evidence I had secured against all the hotels after 11 o'clock at night, by which he could remove Commissioners Dow and Pearson."

"You told Mr. Casey how you felt after being reduced to the ranks after the work you had done for Howe?"

"I did not."

"Didn't you show Mr. Casey a list of contributions from liquor dealers for Howe?"

"I never showed any such list to any one."

"Did you ever receive any money from Tom Connors, James Barry and William Pury?"

"I never did."

"Did you ever tell Tom Lennon to get into the game?"

"I did not."

"Do you know Fred Cummings, the reporter?"

"I do."

"Did you ever ask him how you could use your position to make money?"

"I did not."

"How long have you known Mr. Harrington?"

"I have known of him for many years."

"When you were liquor officer did you ever go to The Sun office and thank Mr. Harrington for the kind words his paper had said about you?"

"I don't remember, I might have."

"Did you ever ask him if he had any friends in the business?"

"I never did."

"The Sun used you pretty well during the early part of the campaign?"

"I think so."

"He reported you fairly, did they not?"

"I don't know. I spoke extemporaneously and I didn't look them over in the paper."

"Do you mean to say you didn't follow the papers during the campaign?"

"I was busy on other things. I read this particular article."

"Did you go into The Sun office on the night of the city elections?"

"I believe I did."

"Didn't you thank Mr. Harrington and The Sun for the way they had used you?"

"I did."

"And you said The Sun would be your official organ?"

"I don't think I said that."

"You said that The Sun was controlled by corrupt interests?"

"Yes, sir."

"What corrupt interests?"

"The brewers and the wholesalers."

"Did you know of any instance where a liquor advertisement or editorial in The Sun was paid for by the brewers?"

"I was informed."

"Never mind what you were informed, what do you know?"

"Well, there was one instance in November, year of the whole case, appeared in The Sun representing a kitchen barroom and its condition. I believe that cartoon was printed to inflame the people against no-license, and I believe it was paid for by the liquor dealers." (Laughter in court room.)

"You bought and sold stocks, did you not?"

"Yes, about no license year."

"Where?"

"At Bright Stars."

"Anywhere else?"

"I don't know."

"Did you ever do business in the Hardware building?"

"I did some business in Quinlan's, small amounts in 2-point margins."

"How much did you put up?"

"About $500."

"How much did you put up at Bright Stars?"

"I think the highest I ever put up was $5000."

"And you had only $1500 in May 1904?"

"Yes, 1904."

"How much did you save out of your pay that year?"

"I don't know."

"How much did you have May 1, 1904?"

"I had $2000. Mr. Kerwin had said."

"In March 1905, you started to buy stocks?"

"At that time."

"When did you carry the 100 shares?"

"This was in June 1905."

"From March 1905 to July 1905, how much did you make in the stock market?"

"About $2000."

"In Bright Stars, alone?"

"Yes."

"In one of your speeches you said you would drive two men out of town?"

"Yes, sir."

"No, sir."

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Recommending legislation looking to the placing of a two per cent tax on the net income of corporations and also the adoption of an amendment to the constitution providing for the imposition of an income tax without an appropriation among the several states, President Taft today sent to congress a message embodying his views on the subject. This action followed a protracted special meeting of the cabinet.

The amendment which he proposes should be made to the tariff bill provides for the imposition upon all corporations and joint stock companies for profit, except national banks, otherwise taxed, savings banks and building and loan associations, of an excise of two per cent on the income of said corporations. This is estimated by him will bring an annual revenue of $25,000,000.

"This is a tax on privilege and not on property," he says, "and is within the federal power without appropriation according to population."

The president's message was brought into the senate about 1:30 o'clock today while Senator Burton was making a speech in opposition to a duty on zinc ore.

When the purpose of the message was made known both republicans and democrats remained in their seats and listened attentively to the reading.

The text of the President's message is as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

The house of representatives has adopted the suggestion and has provided in the bill it passed for the collection of such a tax. In the senate the committee on finance and the committee on the course of the debate indicate that it may not agree to this provision and it is now proposed to make up the deficit by the imposition of a general income tax in form and substance of almost exactly the same character as that in the case of Pollack vs. Farmers Loan & Trust Co. (157 U. S. 429) was held by the supreme court to be a direct tax and therefore not within the power of the federal government to impose unless appropriation among the several states according to population. This new proposal which I did not discuss in my inaugural address or in any message at the opening of the present session makes it imperative for me to submit to the congress certain additional recommendations.

The decision of the supreme court in the income cases deprived the national government of a power which by reason of previous decisions of the court was generally supposed the government had. It is undenied that the power the national government ought to have. It might be compensatory to the nation's life in great crises. Although I have not considered a constitutional amendment as necessary to the exercise of certain phases of this power, a mature consideration has arisen me that an amendment is the only proper course for its establishment to its full extent. I therefore recommend to the congress that both houses by a two-thirds vote shall propose an amendment to the constitution conferring the power to levy an income tax upon the national government without appropriation among the several states.

This course is much to be preferred to the one proposed of recommending a law one judicially declared to be unconstitutional. For the congress to assume that the court will reverse its self and to enact legislation on such an assumption with the expectation of popular opinion in the country, is a political construction of the constitution. It is a much wiser policy to accept the decision and then by the direct but amendment to the constitution.

Again it is clear that by the enactment of the proposed law the congress will not be but a mere rubber stamp, the pressure to meet the present emergency by putting on the statute book a law already there and never repealed.

"You said you would bring them before the grand jury?"

"I did."

"But you didn't bring them?"

"I did not."

"Then when John Harrington said that you were blurring you didn't call the bluff?"

He was not allowed to answer.

"Did you ever speak to Mr. Harrington since your election?"

"Just to say how do you do."

"Didn't you ever say anything else?"

"No, sir. I wouldn't speak to him under any circumstances. I want to make my position clear."

"Did you ever meet him with Tom Mulligan and ask him what he thought of your conduct as mayor?"

"I never."

"Did you ever meet Mr. Casey at his shop?"

"Yes, I went fishing. I was looking for some evidence against Moffatt."

"Did you catch any fish?"

"No."

"Didn't you go to find out what he was going to testify to at this trial?"

"No, sir."

"Didn't you go to see what he testified to before the grand jury relative to that list of liquor dealers in the Howe campaign?"

"No, sir. I went there fishing and he started to tell me about a list of liquor dealers when I stopped him and told him that what he saw was a list of evidence."

"Did you ever send Billy Hunt to James Spillane to tell him that it would not be well for him to testify here?"

"No, sir."

"Did you go to Waterville after your election?"

"No, I went to St. John."

"Now, Mr. Harrington in saying that you were not born in Waterville didn't hurt you did he?"

"I felt the sting."

"Well, this article didn't affect your election much did it?"

"Well, all the people didn't read the paper until after election. It hurt me personally."

"Did you say in a speech that if elected you wouldn't get drunk in front of 1000 children?"

"I did."

"What did you mean by that?"

"I was just speaking extemporaneously and I didn't have any reference to any particular motive for saying it."

SUBURBAN DAY

LOWELL MERCHANTS PLAN TO ENCOURAGE TRADE

The suburban trade development committee of the Lowell Merchants association appointed for the purpose of encouraging the residents of surrounding cities and towns to do their trading in Lowell, met this morning at the rooms of the board of trade in the Central building. All of the members of the committee, Messrs. Harry Dunlap, J. L. Chaffee, P. C. Garrett, Messrs. Marks and John A. McKenna, were present.

The committee has been endeavoring to arrange a plan to develop the suburban trade and has at hand quite a fund furnished by the merchants, newspapers and banks. Every plan which has been submitted by the committee to the railroad companies has been opposed by the latter on the ground that they would interfere with the interstate commerce laws.

The plan decided upon this morning has been submitted to two of the railroad companies and has been found to be practical. Secretary McKenna has been instructed by the committee to have published by the printer, planning the object of suburban day, these circulars to be distributed in the surrounding cities and towns. The committee also voted to have ten bill boards erected in the towns adjacent to Lowell.

FUNERALS

MULLIGAN—The funeral of John Mulligan took place this morning from his late home, 425 Broadway, and was largely attended, many of his friends being present at the mass in St. Patrick's church, of which the deceased was a devoted and faithful attendant. Rev. Fr. Fitzgerald celebrated the mass. The choir directed by M. J. Johnson rendered the Gregorian chant. Miss Alice Murphy and Andrew M. Carthy sustained the solos. "De Profundis" was rendered as the body was borne from the church. The burial was in the Catholic cemetery. The graves at the grave were read by Fr. Fitzgerald. The flowers were Mrs. Michael Mulligan, Andrew Keefe, Martin Sullivan and Thomas Connors. The floral offerings were very beautiful. The following were among them: Standing cross inscribed "At Rest" from Mrs. James J. Connors; large wreath inscribed "In Peace" from Mrs. James J. Connors; large wreath inscribed "In Peace" from Mrs. James J. Connors. The funeral was in charge of C. H. Molloy & Sons.

Number of Offenders Given Direct Sentences

Antonina Gratzki was arraigned before Judge Hadley this morning on a complaint charging her with assault and battery on William Brown. According to the testimony offered, the defendant met Brown on the common and after pinching his nose, she slapped his face a couple of times. She was found guilty and a fine of $10 imposed.

Assault in Hale Street
George W. Bissonnette pleaded not guilty to a complaint charging him with assault and battery on Albert Des Rosiers.

Albert Des Rosiers, the complainant, who is a collector for the Franklin Goodman Corp., testified that yesterday morning he had occasion to go to a house in Hale street for the purpose of collecting some money. While inquiring for the residence of the party for whom he was looking he was met by Bissonnette, who called him a spy. Some words followed and witness said that after calling him vile names Bissonnette struck him.

Several witnesses testified that they saw the defendant strike Des Rosiers. George W. Bissonnette, a painter, said that he did not know who Des Rosiers was until yesterday. He said, however, that he had noticed Des Rosiers around places where he had been working recently and yesterday accused Des Rosiers of being a spy. Des Rosiers denied that he was a spy. Witness said that Des Rosiers called him vile names and he ordered the former to get away. Des Rosiers refused to go, and Bissonnette pushed him out of the way. The defendant denied that he struck the complainant. Bissonnette was found guilty and fined $10. He appealed.

Held for Grand Jury
The case of Deles Paris and Etienne Bowen, charged with adultery, which was started yesterday morning, but abruptly stopped owing to the lack of preparation on the part of the government, was resumed this morning. Several witnesses who reside in the same building occupied by the defendants testified that they were given to understand that Paris and the Bowen woman were married.

Sergeant Alexander Duncan who arrested the pair said that they said they had been living together for five or six years.

Paris said that he was married but did not know the whereabouts of his wife. He said that he boarded with the Bowen woman.

Mrs. Bowen denied that she ever had any improper relations with Paris. The pair were held under $300 bonds for their appearance before the superior court.

Gross Assault
George Martin, a young man, pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with assault and battery on Lydia C. Beauregard. Miss Beauregard was walking along the street this morning when Martin approached her and assaulted her. A young man who was in the vicinity at the time was attracted to the scene by the cries of the young woman and held Martin for the police.

Martin was given a four months' sentence to jail, the court adding that he was not sure that he had imposed a sentence heavy enough for the offense.

Drunk Offenders
John F. Buckley, a third offender, pleaded for another chance, stating that he had work to go to. He was given a suspended sentence of five months in the house of correction and placed on probation for six months.

James Bourke, a third offender, will spend the next four months in jail. Joseph Geoffrey denied that he was drunk, but Patrolman Cossette, who arrested the defendant, said he found him staggering drunk at the corner of Cheever and Aiken streets last night. Joseph was sentenced to three months in jail and appealed.

Timothy McCarthy, John A. Milron and Frank Hennessy, second offenders, were each fined $6. James Cheary, also a second offender, was sentenced to ten days in jail.

There were three $2 drunks.

FUNERALS
DUPREZ—The funeral of Mrs. Mizael Duprez took place yesterday morning from her home, 210 Pawtucket street, with solemn funeral services at St. Jean Baptiste church, which were largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Frs. Barrette, Lamothe and Elzard, O. M. I., officiated. The choir sang. The funeral mass under the direction of Dr. Caliste and Arthur J. Martel played the organ. The bearers were six nephews of the deceased, Clement, Henri and William Duprez, and Louis, George and Octave Gaudette. St. Anne's sodality was represented by Mesdames Legare, Champagne, Lamothe and Landry. Among relatives present from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. Prudent Melo of Lynn, Mr. and Mrs. Aime Dudaime and Mrs. Frappier of Worcester, and Mrs. Evariste Marcotte of Richelleu. Que. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. Rev. Fr. Barrette officiated at the grave. Undertaker Joseph Albert had charge.

DOUGLASS—The funeral of Herbert Douglass was held yesterday afternoon at his late residence, 83 B street, and was largely attended by many relatives and friends.

Rev. J. P. West of the Highland Methodist church officiated, and there was singing by Misses Hattie Perkins, Bernice Parker, Ethel Hadden, and Mr. Percy A. Yarnold.

Among the many beautiful flowers were the following: Large pillow inscribed "Father," Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Douglass; large wreath inscribed "Brother," from the brothers and sisters; wheat, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Cross, and sprays from the following: Miss Willa Romer and Rosa A. Romer, Mr. and Mrs. R. Yarnold and family; Chelmsford street Free Baptist church; Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Olney; Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Shorey; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Clark and family; the home department of the Chelmsford street Baptist church; Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Bernston; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Thompson; Miss Dora Truax; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Pangburn; Mr. C. J. Henderson; Mrs. M. Dillon and R. Henderson.

The bearers were Charles A. Douglass, A. W. Clark, Richard Clark and Mr. Hoover. Burial was in the family lot in the Westlawn cemetery under the direction of Undertaker Albert H. Bixby.

WALSH—The funeral of Leo Walsh, infant son of Michael J. and Mary Walsh, took place yesterday afternoon from the home of his parents, Church street, North Chelmsford, at 2 o'clock. The burial was in the family lot in the Catholic cemetery, where the grave was completely covered with flowers, the offerings of many sympathetic friends. The funeral was under the direction of J. F. O'Donnell & Sons.

DEATHS
HADLEY—Harvey Hadley, for many years a resident of this city and engaged here, until a few years ago, in the market business, died late last night at his home, 71 Canton street. His age was 74 years, 2 months and 3 days. Mr. Hadley had been seriously ill for some months past.

Mr. Hadley was born in Peterboro, N. H., April 10, 1835. He was the son of Elban and Betsy Hadley and was one of a family of 14 children, 11 of whom lived to have homes of their own. Those of the large family who are alive are: Mrs. Phoebe Hadley

SUMMER DROWNINGS

The sad story of beloved little ones, disregarding mother's advice, resorting to the swim, the reckless plunge into deep water, the cry for help and then the heartrending search for the little body, the stricken home and the agonized parents. This is a prediction of the sorrow that comes to an average of from six to eight homes in Lowell every summer. Take mother's advice and avoid the danger.

Carler of Caryville, Mass., the oldest being 56 years; Albert A. Hadley of Lowell, the youngest, aged 62 years, and George W. Ethan Addison, Darius and Eliza Hadley and Mrs. Edwin Whitney. Mrs. Charlotte Stowers, another sister, died in May last, at her home in Ashland, Mass. Mr. Hadley married Mary M. Fiske in Whitefield, N. H., May 22, 1856. She survives him, also three children, Mrs. C. E. Bullard of Peterboro, N. H., and Flora and Frank L. Hadley of this city, and two grandchildren, Maude Eva Hadley and Mrs. J. A. Lodge of Manchester, Mass.

Mr. Hadley came to Lowell in 1851 and went into the market business in School street. His business increased and in 1887 he moved into the Highland hall building, in Branch street. He remained there until 1902, when, owing to poor health, he retired for a time. The following year, however, he entered in business again, in the place in School street, where he had first been located in this city. In 1905 his health grew worse and he sold out his business. Since that time he had been in a state of gradual decline.

Mr. Hadley was a much respected man and one who was the soul of honesty and fairness. He made friends during his years in this city, and he was one much devoted to his home and his family.

MURRAY—John F. Murray died last night at his home, 26 Kinsman street. He was a well known resident of that section of the city, and was a member of the Holy Name society of the Sacred Heart church. He leaves a wife, Margaret, six children, William, John, Joseph, Esther, Margaret and Eugene, a mother, Mary, two sisters, Bridget and Elizabeth, and one brother, Andrew.

DUNN—Hector L. Dunn died yesterday morning at his home, 553 Moody street, aged 56 years, 6 months. He leaves a wife, his mother, Mrs. Hebe Dunn, who is 92 years old, a brother, George Dunn, both of Lowell, and two sisters, Mrs. Pierre Langlois of Michigan and Mrs. Marcoux of No. Adams. He was a member of L'Union Samuel de Champlain.

AMADON—Charles L. Amadon died yesterday at his home in Monson, Mass., at the age of 79 years. He leaves one son, Frederick C. Amadon, one daughter, Mrs. H. Brown of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Robert Marshall of Cambridge.

CUDDY—James Cuddy, aged 62 years, died Tuesday night at his late home, 1902 Central street. The deceased was an old resident of Lowell, and has been a member of St. Peter's church for many years. He leaves in his home, a wife, two daughters, Miss Mary of California and Miss Emily of this city, two sons, James and Henry M. of this city. Friends are requested not to send flowers. Funeral will take place Friday morning at 8 o'clock from his late home, 1902 Central street. Funeral mass of requiem at St. Peter's church at 9 o'clock. Undertakers M. H. McDonough & Sons in charge.

FUNERAL NOTICE

HADLEY—Died, in this city, June 15th, Harvey Hadley, aged 74 years, 2 months, 5 days. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late residence, 71 Canton street. Friends invited without further notice. Undertaker George W. Hadley in charge.

DELANO DECLINES

CHICAGO, June 16.—A preference for railroad over diplomacy, coupled with a desire to continue his work and his home in Chicago were the reasons assigned by Frederick A. Delano, president of the Wabash railroad for declining the honor conferred upon him by President Taft in offering him the post of minister to China.

"I have no inclination for public life said Mr. Delano, nor do my ambitions or schooling lie in that direction. I believe I can accomplish more where I am and that I am trying to do for the development of railroads at home.

MATRIMONIAL

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday at 62 Fisher street when Mr. Louis Sarre and Miss Alix Chapdelaine were united in marriage by Rev. J. H. Paré. The bride was becomingly attired in white crepe de chine trimmed with silk fringe and rare old lace sent her from Paris by the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Auguste Sarre. She also wore a tulle veil caught with a diamond tiara, the gift of the bridegroom, and carried bride roses. The bridemaid, Miss Gertrude Leith, wore pink messaline and carried Mr. Harry Sarre's. The best man was Mr. Harry Sarre. The wedding march, to which the bridal party entered the drawing room, was played by Mrs. Harro Paré.

Following the ceremony, luncheon was served and at 2:30 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Sarre left in an automobile for New York. They sailed today on the Mauretania for a three months' tour abroad.

MURPHY INSANE

When He Attacked and Killed Five Men

CAMBRIDGE, June 16.—It was while suffering from delusional insanity that John J. Murphy, a pig-sticker in the North Packing Co., of Somerville, slew five of his fellow workmen and wounded three others on June 5, according to the report of two alienists in the superior court today.

After hearing the report Judge Lawton acted at once by ordering Murphy sent to the state institution for the criminal insane at Bridgewater.

The alienists, Drs. Knapp and Baldwin, declared that Murphy had been a victim since last January. He told the doctors that he had been persecuted by his fellow workmen.

Murphy was at work on the seventh floor of the Packing company on the afternoon of June 5, when he suddenly stopped killing pigs and with his long keen-edged knife slashed Dr. Hayes, a government inspector who happened to be nearest and then drove the workmen before him like a herd of frightened sheep down the stairs, killing five and wounding two others. All the victims were stabbed through the heart.

Murphy was struck down and finally overpowered. He was taken to Bridgewater shortly before noon today leaving at his home a wife and three children.

DANGEROUS CRISIS

It Looks Like a Revolution in Honduras

NEW ORLEANS, June 16.—The Times-Democrat today says: Events are marching on toward revolution in Honduras according to despatches received yesterday by the local business houses engaged in Central American trade. The country faces a most dangerous crisis probably the most serious since the fall of General Manuel Bonilla in 1905. The despatches say that Lacoiba and the northern coast provinces of the unsettled country are in open revolt and have sent emissaries to New Orleans to persuade Bonilla to return and take possession of the government. President Davila has appealed to the state department of the United States gunboat Paduan is patrolling Ceiba harbor to prevent sanguinary outbreaks.

Gen. Bonilla is in New Orleans and it was stated yesterday that he had secured his passage to Belize, Honduras, for next Thursday on the steamship M. T. Hugo as had also Mr. Fausto Davila, a step-brother of President Davila. They stoutly deny, however, that there is anything significant in their departure.

TRAINING SCHOOL

Beautiful Graduation Exercises
Held Last Evening

Associate Hall Crowded With
Friends of Pupils and Pupil-
Teachers — Address by Prof.
Charles Zueblin

The annual graduation of the Training school took place in Associate hall, last evening with a large attendance. On the platform were the pupils of the school, the pupil teachers, the faculty, the members of the school board and the speaker of the evening, Hibbard's orchestra furnished music. The platform was also prettily adorned with flowers.

As the speaker of the evening, Prof. Charles Zueblin, had to take an early train he was presented first on the program by Miss Gertrude Edmund, principal of the school who made a graceful speech of welcome.

At the close of Prof. Zueblin's address Miss Edmund introduced Miss French who is employed by the Florence Crittenton society to assist school physicians by investigating conditions in the homes of the children. Miss French spoke in a most interesting manner.

Miss Edmund addressed the graduates on the importance of character in the teacher.

She said that the "teacher's real influence comes from the inner life. To see the truth we must be true ourselves. One reason why the best teaching is not more appreciated, is due to the fact that teaching is a spiritual process and its effects are not immediately manifest. Before scholarship, before college or normal school training, and even before good manners, is the spirit and vigor, the sound character and the cheerful views of life which make a teacher a ray of sunshine in the school room."

Miss Collins, president of the class of 1909, and little Miss Ethel Boutwell of the grammar department presented pictures as their gifts to the school. Miss Collins also, in a graceful speech, presented to Miss Edmund a superb bouquet of red roses.

Supl. A. K. Whitcomb, in presenting the diplomas, emphasized the glory of service and the wealth of opportunity in a teacher's life.

The Graduates

The names of the teachers graduated are as follows: Mary Helena Collins, Sadie Agatha Connors, Grace Eliza Common, Elizabeth Anna Conway, Kathleen Driscoll, Frances Louise Donovan, Laura Frances Greene, Mary Julia Moynahan, Katherine Philomena O'Brien, Edith Tasker Sanborn, Leona Mildred Small, Louise Claire Thomas and Rena Jenks Thomas.

The names of the graduates of the grammar school are as follows: Henry K. Gerlish, Mary I. Hay, Sherman C. Blair, Henry C. Richter, Richard O. Sykes, Mabel A. Birtwell, Harold J. Wilde, Hamzah de Mannedan, Fred Marshall, Daniel Joseph McGee, Charles Orin, Daisy Lowrey, Joseph Henry Wood and Marion E. Kimball.

Prof. Zueblin's Address

Prof. Zueblin's subject was "Industrial Education," and he spoke in part as follows:

"Industrial education means to most people the training of the hands of factory workers. I should like to use it tonight in a much broader sense, in which I may take the liberty of implying that you all need industrial education. It is needed by the employer, by the employed and by the public.

"We are a little inclined to overlook the employer. The average employer of labor does not know much about working people. He may know something about the service that he buys, but he usually does not know much about working people. If he has risen from the ranks himself he is less likely to know, than if he has not; for we become surrounded by new social conditions and very rapidly get into an entirely new atmosphere, and forget the scenes of our youth.

"But if the employer needs to be educated in regard to labor, what shall we say about the workman? The average workman does not understand any of the commercial processes by which his goods are marketed. The mere making of a good product does not get it sold. The industrial education of the workman must be not merely of his hand and eye, but must enable him to understand the great, mysterious processes of business.

"What shall we say about the public, the great, impersonal, conscienceless public, that is looking, generally, for one of two things,—either things that cost less than they are worth, or things that cost more? The great power behind all the employers of labor is the purchasing public. Its employees include those that we commonly call employers, as well as the employees.

"John Mitchell said that the average American workman expects always to be a workman. That is a truism, but newspaper writers get hydrophobic over it. Yet it is unfair to persuade the average boy to devote himself to the idea of becoming president. The sooner we become interested in the belief that they are to remain workmen, and educate them for that and reconcile them to that, the better.

"This training is to be not only for efficiency, but also for adaptability. The function which the teacher has is to prepare the American boy and girl for adaptability to meet the new situation. Things do not stay as they are, even in our old-fashioned New England towns.

"The big business organizations cannot get enough of the men who know how to manage men. We must give to every individual who has this latent in him, a development of that adaptability, and I personally believe it is inherent in every individual.

"Referring to our textile school, which is preparing young men for work in our great local industries, the professor said he met on the train one night, the young man going back to Lawrence, from this school. 'Some of them,' he said, 'came here supplees, in order to take advantage of this opportunity for education. Is it any wonder that the principal waxes enthusiastic? But I asked him what he was going to do for the boys who do not care enough for education to go supplees, and he said he did not think he could do anything for them.

"New, I want to say to these graduates that they will have to do something for these boys, too. That will be their hardest task, to take the ordinary boy and girl and make the best possible out of them. Genius will take care of itself; but how about the boy who does not want to make those sacrifices? We must somehow or other, throw wider open the doors of school for him, and give him the power of adaptability.

"In addition, to adaptability, we want to train the workers in efficiency. Here is America, standing triumphantly before the world! Surely we have shown our efficiency in the organization of business, in getting markets; but do you know who it is that does most of the finer quality of craftsmanship in this country? It is the foreigner. The American workman, when he succeeds, becomes an overseer, an employer, a capitalist. Men are everywhere complaining of the quality of the workmanship of our boys and girls that come out of our schools. We will have to go to school ourselves, as a nation, to Germany and even to Japan.

"If we are to have adaptability and efficiency, we must give to the workers an interest in their work.

"What can the school do? It can give the boys and girls of America an elementary education. Do you appreciate that not one-half of the children of free America ever go through the eighth grade? They are drafted into work before they are prepared.

"What next can you give to the average child in school? At least a general education. We ought to have some appreciation of the finer things of life, no matter what our future occupation is going to be. If we are going to be scavengers and street cleaners, and the more reason for knowing something about art to begin.

"But, you ask, how can we? Surely the industrial education will have to crowd out some of the other things! But we want to go more into the realm of culture, and we can do it if our education is scientific. If we give the children a lot of literary and scientific instruction in the morning and let them work with their hands all the afternoon, we can combine a better literary education than we give them now, with an industrial education.

"Take English literature alone. We cannot possibly compass it. We should therefore select for each child that thing which will do him most good, and that he will remember. The old-fashioned pedagogue will tell you that there is discipline in these things. Yet, if you can be taught something that you will remember and at the same time get discipline, that is the thing you ought to be taught.

"The boy in our industrial school of the future who shows early proficiency in metals; let us give him history from the standpoint of metals. Raw minerals in the earth, the uses in which they are put. Think of the history of civilization; but you can think of the whole line of kings and queens, and get no light on civilization.

"Then there is the boy who likes to work in wood. There is the primal forest; the uses of lumber; all the evolution of architecture, even the dominant religion of our country come from a carpenter.

"Teach literature and science in the same way. 'Suppose you teach a boy history from the standpoint of metals and he turns out a minister? Well, it never will hurt him to remember some of the content of his disciplinary studies, a thing which he does not do now! I spent a series of painful years forgetting five years of Hebrew, when I might have been studying economics.'

"On the subject of local education, he said that the textile school of Trenton, N. J., has developed the work in clay to the point where the brick layers' union requires one year of instruction in that school, as a condition of admission to the Union.

"The consumer, he said, needs industrial education in order to appreciate the products of labor. 'Every time you buy a yard of cloth or a pound of butter or sugar, do not forget that you employ all of the labor that goes into it. You are responsible for all the conditions. We buy clothing that is manufactured in sweat shops, and we get diseases. Yes; but do not forget that the people in sweat shops have diseases too; and that is as bad as for us to have them. Some day we are going to have conscience in these things.'

"Speaking further along the line of local education, he said: 'Quite recently, the people of your city discovered that they were responsible for one

FIRE EQUIPMENT

COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS DID NOT TAKE ACTION

The question of appropriating $29,000 for new fire equipment and fixings went to the committee on appropriations last night. The expenses recommended by the committee on fire department was as follows:

Auto protective $500; hose wagon, Central fire station $500; aerial ladder, Central fire house, $500; equipment for Central fire house $350; new fire engine for Pawtucketville, $5250.

Councilman James Flanagan of the committee advocated that $4700 be expended for an aerial truck, and that $3300 be expended for fittings for the Central fire house, also that $2500 be used in repairing the Pawtucketville fire engine, instead of buying a new engine.

Councilman Kilpatrick favored the expenditure of $20,000 for fire apparatus. No action was taken and the committee adjourned to next Monday night.

TOBACCO GROWERS PROTEST

HARTFORD, Conn., June 15.—As a result of a meeting of the New England Tobacco Growers a long despatch protesting against the enactment of any legislation giving free entry into this country to Philippine tobacco was sent to United States Sen. Lodge yesterday by Marcus L. Floyd, chairman of the legislative committee.

The despatch says that the tobacco growers regard that part of the Payne bill which provides for the free entry into this country from the Philippine Islands of a certain amount of cigar leaf tobacco and a certain number of cigars as the greatest menace that has ever threatened the tobacco industry of the country.

THE BIG WHITE WAY

We have already endorsed Mayor Brown's idea of the big white way so far as Middlesex street is concerned. That street is altogether too dark when the stores are closed. It will be vastly improved by being lit up by a number of the large arc or other lights, such as are seen in front of some of our leading stores. If the cost is not exorbitant, it will bring satisfactory returns in the more attractive appearance of the streets by night and the banishment of all that is either literally or figuratively "shady."

OUR BARBAROUS FOURTH

We are nearing the annual orgy of noise and fireworks by which we celebrate the Fourth of July. It is right that we should celebrate Independence Day, but to go to such extremes that on the following day the dead will number 100 and the wounded 2000, is the height of absurdity.

It is a fact that since 1899 the average deaths on the Fourth, due to accidents in fireworks and other features of the celebration, have averaged fifty each Fourth, while the American Medical Journal last year reported the deaths from accidents at 163.

Nothing can stop this foolishness but strict regulations by towns and cities and rigid enforcement of the law.

The present style of celebration is little short of barbarous and yet it is only regarded as the uncorked merriment of the younger generation. But the noise is not by any means confined to the young. It is not uncommon to find that men old enough to have sense, have blown their fingers off in the careless use of explosives.

If the older people do not attempt to drop their insane antics on the Fourth, they cannot expect the young to lead the way.

If all the lunatics in the asylums of the United States were gathered together and let loose along the streets of Lowell, we venture to say they would not appear to be half as crazy as the people we shall have along our streets, and on the public parks and commons on the night before the Fourth.

There is a society in New York for the suppression of unnecessary noise, and it is doing excellent work in influencing cities and towns to suppress the bedlam that prevails on the Fourth and the evening before.

Of course it would be useless to try to stop people from killing themselves when they insist on pursuing so many methods of accomplishing that end. But they may condescend to concede a little in the matter of making less noise.

The noise is harrowing to the sick, the weary, the weak and the brain-fagged. It is often actually cruel in its effect upon nervous people while trying to invite much needed sleep.

Not only the noise should be eliminated but the cannon crackers, the fireworks, the noise, the use of explosives, toy pistols and shot guns should all be barred except under special license.

Unless the authorities in cities and towns decide to make our Fourth more sanely enjoyable, we shall never see much improvement in the lessening of noise or reducing the number of fatalities.

SECRETS OF LONG LIFE

We notice for the sake of comparison the "glad tidings" brought to his people by Dr. Otoman Zar Adnash Hainish of Chicago, the apostle of the Sun Worshipers in this country to the effect that nobody need ever grow old or experience sorrow or disease if they live according to the formulas of his cult. He made this declaration in Chicago a few days ago at a meeting of Mazzanians at which Mother Shaw of Lowell sat at the right of the Master. We presume that Mother Shaw is henceforth immune against all the ills of life, sorrow, sickness and even death. This so-called "master" who is yet a young man, judging from his appearance, tells his followers that he is 64 years old and that he lived in other bodies before reaching this earth.

We are not interested in the tenets held by the Sun Worshipers and would not have referred to them, but for this catchy declaration that their methods of breathing, bathing, eating and dressing render them immune from disease and the usual infirmities that come with advancing age. Professor Fisher of Yale in an article in the World's Work gives some scientific theories on the means of overcoming as far as may be practicable the invasions of disease. He points out the things that make for long life and condenses them into "knowledge, self control and enthusiasm." He advocates plenty of fresh air both for the lungs and the skin, proper bathing, exercising, resting, sleeping, thinking, feeling and willing. The secret of health, he holds, lies in moderation in food united with an even and cheerful disposition that looks upon the sunny side and avoids unnecessary worry over the affairs of every day life. Professor Fisher holds that a man arrives at maturity when 25 years and that he should logically live five times as long or 125 years.

The errors by which people shorten their lives, according to Professor Fisher, are immoderate eating or drinking, noncompliance with the laws of health and hygiene, worry, anger, jealousy, ill temper, fear, excitement, hate, grief or any other depressing emotions of the mind. We cut short our lives and do not live nearly so long as we might by strict adherence to the laws that promote health and happiness.

These statements are based upon the truths of science and not upon fake theories such as are dispensed by the representatives of various cults, bearing high sounding names. Unfortunately it is not always possible for everybody who understands the laws of health to follow them. Those who have money enough to enable them avoid engaging in any unhealthy occupation or in over-fatiguing labor might prolong their lives by following the rules laid down by Professor Fisher. It is universally admitted that the people who lead an easy, quiet life without any nervous excitement and without indulging intemperance of any kind, will naturally live longer, other things being equal, than those who live in the midst of excitement and are under continuous nervous strain.

SEEN AND HEARD

THE WORLD AT ITS BEST
Oh, it's good to get up in the morning when the wind blows through blossoming trees. And a fragrance, delightful and subtle, is wafted along on the breeze.
When the emerald hills in the distance seem nearer than ever before. And the wavelets make music as softly they ripple upon the wide shore.

"Sir, I wish to marry your daughter," faltered the young man.
"You do eh?" exclaimed the fond parent. "Well, I have been rather expecting this, and, to be thoroughly orthodox, I shall put a few questions to you. Do you drink?"
"No, sir. I abhor liquor."
"You do, eh? Smoke?"
"I never use tobacco in any form."
"Well, I didn't think you would. Do you frequent the race track?"
"I never saw a horse race in my life, sir."
"Um-m-m. Play cards for money?"
"Emphatically no, sir."
"Well, young man, I must say you are heavily handicapped. My daughter is a thorough society girl, and I can't for the life of me see what she is going to do with you. However, it's her funeral, and if she wants to undertake the job—why, God bless you both!"—Washington Post.

The fisherman and his story are again with us for a season. The question at issue just now is whether the fish or the stories are the larger and better. One account in which the fish seems to rival the story for honors has recently crossed the ocean from London. A correspondent of a journal published in that city writes that he went fishing not long ago in a small lake outside the corporation limits. After flitting with trout nearly all day he finally succeeded in hooking one—a little fellow. The fish didn't seem to care very much at first and the fisherman confesses that when he discovered what a small one it was he did not care very much either. However, he decided that he would have to take something home to show for his day's work and so he pulled the trout toward his landing net. The fish came in along the surface with its side up, as fish sometimes do when they are dragged rather rapidly or when they are trying to decide what their course of procedure shall be. The fisherman found that his line was a little too long and so he began to reel in, rather carefully, allowing the tip of the rod to drop. The fish "sized up the situation" and took immediate advantage of the favorable conditions. When only about two feet from the landing net, where the water was only two or three inches deep and so clear that every movement of the fish could be seen, it suddenly dashed toward a little patch of grass, seized several of the tough strands in its mouth and prepared to resist capture. It held on valiantly, the fisherman being compelled to exercise considerable muscular power to pull it loose. When it was finally hauled within reach of the landing net and lifted out of the water, the fisherman discovered that a piece of the grass was still stuck in its mouth.

The American girl is the greatest influencing element in European life today, says Edgar Saltus in the July Smart Set. The rock-ribbed traditions of a titled aristocracy that has resisted every democratizing assault of modern times are crumbling before the flood of the new ideas introduced by the American women who have become members of European houses. Titles are losing their value as far as the men are concerned, and are becoming like feathers and ribbons, mere appendages of feminine adornment. Men were formerly known by their dress. When society abroad becomes ideal, concludes Mr. Saltus, every essay on "our Foreign Princesses" no man will be titled, and all the women will be.

It is not the peculiarity of the artist or of any error for it occurs many times and that is a pity for the habit of position will be handed down to succeeding generations," it says.

IN TEWKSBURY

GRANGE WAS SCENE OF CHILDREN'S PARTY

Grange hall at Tewksbury was packed last evening. The event was a children's night by the Tewksbury grange. There was a pleasing musical program. Nine children entered a drawing contest and nine very good pictures were drawn. For the drawings, prizes of 15, 50 and 25 cents were awarded Ruth Tingley, Duncan Cameron and Thelma Wannamaker. The judges of the contest were Mrs. Lucy of Billerica, Mrs. Frank Fitzgerald of South Billerica and Fred Vinal of Dracut. The program was as follows: Orchestra selection; recitation, Doris Tingley; Dixie quartet, selection; piano duet, Esther Lewis and Eva Gray; duet, Thelma Wannamaker and Evelyn Anderson; recitation, Raymond Wilde; Dixie quartet, selection; piano duet, selection; piano duet, Misses Anderson; recitation, Ruth Tingley; solo, Mary Bushee; duet, Thomas McHugh and Irene Miller; solo, Alice Guillard; orchestra, selection. Light refreshments were served and the evening proved a most enjoyable one.

THE ALDERMEN

Referred the "Light as Day" Proposition to Committee

The board of aldermen met last evening and referred to the committee on appropriations the order for the transfer of $2000 from the general treasury fund to provide for better lighting in Middlesex, Merrimack and Central streets. Alderman Connors objected to the order. He said it might be a good thing for the Electric Light company, but he didn't think it was a good proposition for the city. The contract under the proposition was for eight years.

A petition for relocation of Boston & Northern railroad tracks in Merrimack, Bridge and Middlesex streets, to conform with the plans for block paving those streets, was read. Thomas C. Lees, division superintendent of the road, explained that it was necessary in the course of improvements to lay tracks of a width of four feet, six inches.

An order accompanying the petition was unanimously adopted. Then there was read a joint communication from the mayor relative to the lighting of downtown streets. In this letter the mayor said, in part:

Lowell, Mass., June 15, 1909.
To the Members of the City Council:

MERRIMACK ST. STORE

of the business section, particularly Merrimack, Prescott, Central and Middlesex streets, and including Monument square, Merrimack square, Town's corner and Depot square, appears to me to be entirely inadequate, and a large proportion of our citizens are impressed with the same idea. This system has been in operation for practically 30 years without change or improvement, and in view of the growth of the city, especially the sections referred to, and for other strong reasons which I shall set forth, I have reached the conclusion that the installation of a small cost of a more modern and effective system of street lighting is a matter of extreme necessity, and will materially assist Lowell in its development and progress.

This new system will mean a cost of about $5000 additional to the amount we now pay annually, but the lighting will be several times more effective than the present system of arc lights. With the new system, the poles will be located every 50 feet on each side of the street. Each pole will have a cluster of four lights, 14 feet from the ground, giving a better diffused light. The plan calls for approximately eight light clusters in Monument square, near the Dutton street railroad crossing, and in addition to the two clusters recently installed in front of city hall, ten clusters in Merrimack square, or approximately 40 lights, six clusters at Town's corner, and eight clusters at the depot. The poles will extend from city hall to the depot, including Merrimack, Prescott, Central and Middlesex streets, every 50 feet. This will light the streets brilliantly, and at the same time the system will be modern, and at night it will be a sight of which every citizen can well feel proud.

The company is willing to begin work at once in order to have the new system installed by the first of September, in time for the next carnival week. This seems to me to be the most opportune time, as the company will be able to lay its conduits in Merrimack, Prescott and part of Middlesex streets in conjunction with the new paving in Merrimack and part of Middlesex streets the current week, and beneath the edgestones of the sidewalks, all the expense being borne by the Electric Light corporation. The corporation now charges $100 for each arc lamp. The cost of each new cluster will be $250, or $2250 a lamp.

If this work can be completed by carnival week, when thousands of automobiles will visit this city from every section of the country and people to the number of 200,000 will make Lowell their mecca, it will give the city an opportunity to advertise itself throughout the world, for the proposed system of lighting will not only be beautifying, but it will be unique.

In conclusion, and in brief, I am in favor of this project for the following reasons:

- 1.—It will be a benefit to the business interests of our city and to our tradespeople.
- 2.—It will benefit the large numbers of people who use these streets at night for shopping and promenade.
- 3.—It will beautify the streets and make them attractive, not only to our own people, but to visitors.
- 4.—It will make Lowell the only city in the east similarly lighted.
- 5.—It will improve property and induce property owners to improve their buildings.
- 6.—This system should be installed in conjunction with the new smooth paving.
- 7.—The streets at present are inadequately lighted and in places are so dark as to be dangerous.
- 8.—The improved lighting will eliminate in a measure the danger at grade crossings.
- 9.—This work should be done in time for carnival week.
- 10.—It will give us a modern system that will not need improvement for many years.
- 11.—All the people are in favor of better lighted streets, and approve of this project.

I believe that we can do nothing that will be more heartily sanctioned and approved by all classes of our citizens than to carry out this plan, and I respectfully recommend that the sum of $2000 be appropriated from the general treasury, to be placed to the credit of the appropriation for the lighting of Merrimack, Prescott, Central and Middlesex streets for the remainder of the year.

Very respectfully,
Geo. H. Brown, Mayor.

An order accompanying the communication introduced by Alderman Gray, provided for the transfer of $2000 from the general treasury fund to street lighting to pay the additional expense for the year under the proposed change.

Alderman Stevens asked as to the time of the contract under the new proposition, and Mr. Hunnewell of the Electric Light corporation said eight years.

"I consider this a good thing for the Electric Light corporation," said Alderman Connors, "but I fail to see where the city is to be benefited. I notice the mayor speaks of the automobiles coming to Lowell, but I fail to see where that is going to do the city any good."

On motion of Alderman Dexter, seconded by Alderman Connors, it was voted to refer the order to the committee on appropriations.

The joint report of the committee on streets, that leave to withdraw be given to W. T. S. Bartlett, on his petition to change the names of certain streets in Pastuckville, was adopted in concurrence.

Pole locations in School street and Rutland road were voted the New England Telephone and Telegraph company.

Other business of a minor nature was transacted and the meeting adjourned at 10:15.

THE RAILROADS

PURCHASED MILLIONS OF TIES DURING 1908

WASHINGTON, June 15.—During the year 1908, the steam and electric railroads of the United States purchased more than 112,000,000 cross-ties, costing, at the point of purchase, over $56,000,000, an average of 50 cents per tie, according to statistics just made public by the bureau of the census in co-operation with the United States forest service. This was some 40,000,000 ties less than the quantity purchased in 1907, when the total was approximately 152,000,000, the highest ever recorded. The decreased purchases in 1908, were, of course, chiefly due to the business depression which affected every line of industry. This forced most of the roads to purchase only the ties which were absolutely essential for renewals, and heavily cut down the purchase for new track. In 1908 only 7,431,000 cross-ties were reported as purchased for new track as against 23,557,000 in 1907. Of the total number of ties purchased for all purposes, the steam roads took approximately 91 per cent, leaving about six per cent for the electric roads.

It is very interesting to note the wide range of woods used for cross-ties. The preliminary report by the census bureau lists separately 15 classes or species. Of these the oaks are now and have always been by far the most important. The oak ties amounted to more than 48,000,000 or 42 per cent of the total quantity purchased. Next to these ranked the southern yellow pines, with 21,500,000, or 19 per cent of the total. It will be seen that the oaks and southern pines combined furnished nearly three-fourths of all the ties bought by the railroad companies last year. Cedar and chestnut supplied more than 8,000,000 ties each, and Douglas fir nearly as much. About 4,000,000 tamarack ties were purchased, nearly 2,500,000 cypress ties, and, in round numbers, 3,000,000 each of western pine, hemlock, Redwood, white pine, lodgepole pine, gum, beech, spruce, and several other woods were used in smaller quantities.

While the oaks, and particularly the white oaks, have always been the preferred woods for cross-ties and still form a large proportion of the total, the increasing prices which the roads have had to pay for satisfactory substitutes are forcing them to look more and more for substitutes. This accounts in part for the great variety of woods reported. White oak, untreated, makes a tie which gives excellent service for many years, but it has been found possible to take woods which, naturally are not durable, give them a treatment with either creosote or zinc chloride, which will prevent decay, and thus get much longer service from them than can be secured from untreated oak ties. Among the woods which have been most largely treated so far are the yellow pines, particularly loblolly pine, Douglas fir, western pine, and lodgepole pine.

This year's statistics adds to the list two kinds of cross-ties which previously had not been reported in sufficient quantity to justify listing them separately. These are gum and beech. The purchases of gum ties in 1908 exceeded 200,000, while but slightly more than 15,000 of them were reported in the previous year. Of beech ties, the purchases in 1908 amounted to nearly 150,000, against but little more than 50,000 in 1907. These are woods which are distinctly not suitable for cross-ties unless they are given preservative treatment. Their increased use, therefore, is one of the many results of the progress of wood preservation in the United States. For many years beech had been one of the principal cross-tie woods in Europe, where its value when given chemical treatment was long ago recognized. It is not uncommon for European roads to secure from 20 to 30 years' service from beech cross-ties. Untreated they would not last long enough to warrant their use at all.

BURGLAR RAIDS FLAT

Old Man Was Awed by a Revolver

BOSTON, June 16.—With a revolver pointed at his head for several minutes, one little attempt made to shoot him by a daring house thief, and then forced to hold up his hands while the burglar, who he had apprehended in his home made a successful escape, Otis Merriam, over 70 years old, clerk of the board of overseers of the poor of Chelsea, had the most exciting experience of his life yesterday afternoon.

In his apartments on the second floor of the Hotel Woburn, a four-story wooden structure, 265 Washington avenue, Chelsea, shortly after the noon hour yesterday, he discovered a burglar.

The latter had heard Mr. Merriam entering his suite and was endeavoring to make his escape with the booty he had taken when he was apprehended.

Mr. Merriam grabbed the intruder by the hands and, the latter quickly freeing himself, turned on Mr. Merriam with a revolver. The burglar pulled a revolver from his pocket, aimed it at Mr. Merriam's head, pulled the trigger, but it failed to explode. Seeing that the gun was not at his command the thief ordered the old gentleman to hold up his hands. He then drove Mr. Merriam through a long hallway and several rooms until he arrived at the door and then made his escape.

Before Mr. Merriam came upon the burglar he had gone through at least two of the rooms of the suite. Just what he stole is not known, as Mrs. Annie Merriam was away yesterday. It is believed, however, that several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry have been stolen. Mr. Merriam missed his gold watch and chain and a black silk cloth worth $100.

There were three jewel cases belonging to Mrs. Merriam in the chamber, one of the rooms ransacked, and these were found to be empty, and the belief is that whatever jewels the woman had in them were taken. Also scattered over the bed in the chamber were some 25 pieces of white paper, which were found to be packing silver knives, forks, spoons, etc. which indicated to Mr. Merriam that considerable valuables of this kind were stolen.

"BAKER" DORANDO

HAS NOW GOT PLENTY OF DOUGH

Dorando, the Italian Marathon runner, has cleaned up over twenty-five thousand Yankee dollars in the last six or seven months. He is going to sail for home, June 28.

According to other distance runners the Italian has now purses aggregating $25,000.

Less than a year ago this same Dorando was an insignificant and unknown Italian baker, having his own troubles in keeping cheap clothes on his back and getting enough to keep him alive. He got the runner bug and some one stalked him to the Olympics in London. His spectacular collapse just before he crossed the line in the Marathon race which Johnny Hayes won is ancient history, but that collapse was worth more to him than if he had won the race, as he was the chief figure in that memorable contest.

A few weeks in the music halls of London put him on his feet financially and then along came the American promoters, who secured a contract with the Italian for six months' races in the United States.

Now Dorando made good over here and really improved in his speed is well known. He has run in short and long distances, and while he did not win all of them, he was sufficiently attractive to come out handsomely in his end of the purse. He was well advertised. He has been a thirty fellow and has something to show for his work. Jack Johnson and some other pugilists could get a little profitable hint from this $25,000 which Dorando has laid by.

He knew the game would not last always, and he made his way to the United States. He says that he expects to run very few Marathons in the future, as the effort is too wearing and he wants to live some time yet. He will confine himself to athletic races and races. He is not going to quit the racing game at all. In fact, he is coming to the United States next fall, and according to the Marathon runners here now, he will make this country his home.

MARATHON RACE

AT CANOBIE LAKE ON JUNE 26TH

Of interest to all lovers of running races and sports in general is the announcement from the offices of the New Hampshire electric railways that the new track now in course of construction in the baseball grounds at Canobie lake park will be formally opened on Saturday afternoon, June 26. For the past week Engineer Hood of the company's staff and a gang of men have been employed in laying out the course, and the track will undoubtedly be completed during the present week. When completed it will be one of the finest ever constructed for a similar purpose in New England.

On opening day the management is arranging one of the most attractive cards that has been offered in New England in many years. The principal feature will be a nine mile Marathon race, which is open to athletes anywhere in New England. It was the original intention of the management to make the principal feature a Merrimack Valley Marathon, limiting the contest to residents of the principal cities of the Merrimack valley, but owing to the unusual interest aroused in the event and the desire of many of the largest athletic clubs in Boston and other cities to send representatives, the management has decided to allow any member of the A. A. U. in New England to participate, or any amateur of acknowledged standing. The event has the sanction of the A. A. U. and will be run under the rules of that organization. Applications for blanks may be obtained by addressing E. R. Bishop, New Hampshire Electric Railways, Haverhill, Mass., or the sporting editor of this paper.

LOUIS PRANG

WELL KNOWN BOSTON MAN IS DEAD

BOSTON, June 16.—A dispatch from Los Angeles, Cal., yesterday, announced that Louis Prang of Boston, an art publisher and lithographer of worldwide reputation, died in that city of pneumonia Monday night. He was the husband of Mary Dana Pinks Prang, formerly of Syracuse, N. Y., the well known art educator and author. Louis Prang was born in Breslau, Germany, in 1824. For taking part in the revolutionary movement of 1848 he was forced to leave Germany, arriving in Boston in 1850. His productions of color printings and reproductions of famous paintings made him known throughout the world. He also devised tint books on art, drawing books, and writing books which are used in the schools of the United States, Canada and other countries.

Mr. Prang devoted more than forty years to the study of how to create a standard of colors, a problem that had puzzled science for centuries.

For many years he was head of L. Prang & Co. of Boston and Springfield. He was also president of the Prang Educational Co. of New York. He was a member of numerous New York and Boston clubs and institutions.

STEAMER BATAVIA

GEORGETOWN, June 16.—The steamer Batavia, with the steerage passengers of the wrecked Cunard line steamer, Slavonia on board, passed here yesterday without stopping. The Batavia proceeded direct to Naples.

SENATOR CLAPP

Leader of Fight on Free Sugar

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Senator Clapp of Minnesota led the fight in the senate against admitting tobacco and sugar from the Philippines, free his contention being that the sugar and tobacco trusts alone would be the beneficiaries of such legislation in this country. He was told by Senator Aldrich that the measure was especially favored by the president and replied that he had been diligently at work throughout the special session to carry out Mr. Taft's pledges to the people in regard to tariff reform, but that little headway was being made. The Minnesota senator has voted with the several other republican senators from the middle west for a downward revision of the tariff.

COST $250,000

TO DEVELOP $15,000 HORSE-POWER OF ELECTRICAL ENERGY

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 16.—An exhaustive investigation just completed by a commission of government engineers acting with local officers of the government engineer office, city officials of St. Paul and Minneapolis and prominent business men has demonstrated that 15,000 horsepower of electrical energy can be developed at the lower of the two new navigable locks on the Mississippi just above St. Paul, by the expenditure of an additional $250,000. The government makes the unusual proposition that it will permit the use of power at the lock; provided the two cities or other interests will bear the additional cost. That the power will be used is already settled. Whether it will be used by a private power company, or used jointly by the state of Minnesota and the two adjacent cities is a question which will be determined by a joint commission composed of three men named by Gov. Johnson and three by each of the two mayors.

The government has completed one lock and dam, and partially completed the second, or lower of the two. To develop the power the second dam must be raised 15 feet, utilizing pre-existing foundations and the work already completed. This will provide a 20 foot dam, raising a large head of water and developing enormous power. The state is already interested and wishes a portion of the power for use at the state university nearby the state agricultural school, which is one of the largest in the United States and one of the finest grounds. The government requires 100 horsepower, and the two cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis have need of the balance.

The government's proposition, while it does not establish a precedent, is unusual and the proposed improvement will be the first of its kind in the northwestern United States. The investigations prove that the power can be developed at exceptionally low cost. The most important problems now to be faced are the division of the expenses and the division of power to be developed between the government, state and the cities. The partnership in power, while novel, has been proven feasible. The power plant when built will be only a short distance from Fort Snelling, an immense military post, and convenient both to the state institutions and to St. Paul and Minneapolis.

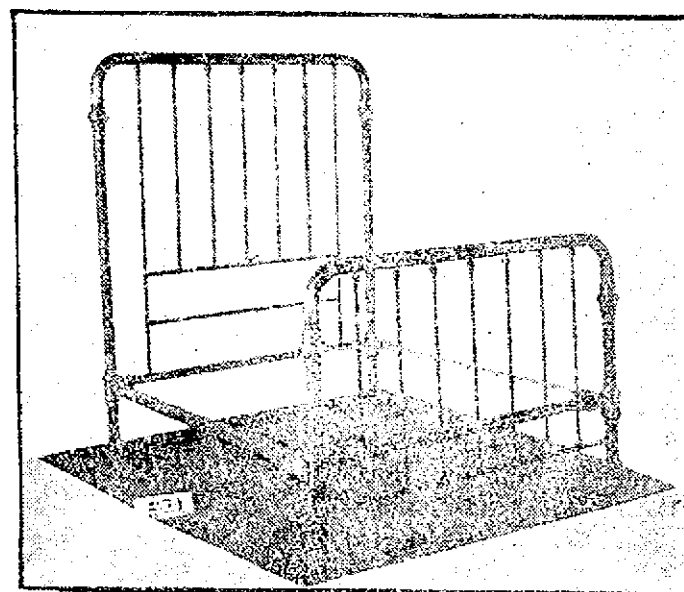

The report of the joint commission will be made to the board of engineers after which the project will be referred to Washington. Legislation will be required before St. Paul and Minneapolis will be able to participate in the cost.

INTERNATIONAL F. OF L.
NEW YORK, June 16.—The President of the International Federation of Labor, who had the assistance of Major C. W. Miller, F. M. A. and J. J. Shannon, John Wade and G. W. Freeman, government engineers from the St. Paul office, Major Lawrence of St. Paul and Hyman of Minneapolis, together with officers of the city governments, council members and business men, participated in the proceedings. The report of the joint commission will be made to the board of engineers after which the project will be referred to Washington. Legislation will be required before St. Paul and Minneapolis will be able to participate in the cost.

LAWRENCE MAN

GIVEN A SENTENCE TO STATE PRISON

SALEM, June 16.—Salvatore Signorelli, a Lawrence Italian, indicted for the murder of Maria Maggi and the attempted murder of her daughter, Annette, whom he wished to marry, after being allowed to plead guilty to the charge of manslaughter in the superior court today, was last night sentenced by Judge Fox to serve not less than 10 nor more than 15 years in state prison.

Mrs. Maggi and her daughter lived in Lawrence and when Signorelli proposed marriage the mother interposed objections and told Signorelli to wait until he had some property. Signorelli attacked the women, killing the mother and seriously injuring the daughter early last fall.

THREE DEAD

AS RESULT OF EXPLOSION IN POWER PLANT

DENVER, Colo., June 16.—Three persons are known to be dead, one probably fatally injured, nine severely injured and three missing, as the result of the explosion last night of a 200-ton boiler in the power plant of the Denver Gas & Electric Co.

So terrific was the explosion that the heavy boiler was thrown high in the air. It crashed through the roof of the plant and completely wrecked the generator and the roof and walls. The electric lights were cut off for more than two hours and the city was in darkness. The property damage is estimated at $250,000.

TO CELEBRATE THE FOURTH

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The sailors and officers of the battleships of the Atlantic fleet will be given ample time fittingly to celebrate Fourth of July at ports on the New England coast. From July 2nd to 4th they will be given shore leave.

At Boston the four ships of the first division of the fleet—the Connecticut, Vermont, Kansas and Louisiana—will give their men liberty.

The four vessels of the second division will scatter along the coast, the Minnesota being sent to Marblehead, Mass.; the New Hampshire to Portsmouth, N. H.; the Mississippi to Eastport, Me.; and the Idaho to Rockport, Mass.

Two of the third division ships, the Georgia and New Jersey, will go to Penobscot Bay, Me., and the Nebraska and Rhode Island of that division will be sent to some port to be selected by the division commander.

PRES. LOWELL SPOKE

PRINCETON, N. J., June 16.—That the other universities of the land are looking toward President Woodrow Wilson in his efforts to solve the problem of the college and that the trend of Princeton's educational policy is in an improved direction, was the laudatory theme of the address delivered by President Abbott Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, at the alumni luncheon following the 162d commencement exercises at Princeton yesterday.

President Wilson spoke first of the feeling of comradeship which he felt toward President Lowell and declared forcibly that the accomplishments of President Lowell would help to widen the counsel of college presidents and incidentally draw Princeton and Harvard nearer together.

FISHERMEN'S MEMORIAL DAY

GLoucester, June 16.—To the ocean which had claimed as tribute 62 Gloucester fishermen during the past year, there were strewn yesterday big quantities of flowers in memory of the men who had gone to the sea in ships. It was the annual fishermen's memorial day here. Among the 40 children who sang, there were several whose fathers, brothers or kinsmen had been lost.

The services which were held on Pavilion beach were most impressive. Officiating was Rev. G. S. Anderson, whose little flock is year by year depleted from the same general cause.

The number of men mourned for today is larger than has been the case for several years past. Formerly the average number of deaths during a year was about 100, but with the advent of larger vessels and various improvements, the number has dwindled and lately has been as low as 25.
